Brighton Pride MUSTS

Here's what you must do at Brighton Pride!
We're going, and you're coming with us.

Let's just be clear on this, this year's Brighton Pride is going to be FUCKING AMAZING! You're going to really, really, really, like it. It's going to be hotter than hell. It'll make you want to play that sax! There's some little music line-up clues for you. Really crap aren't they. Moving on swiftly...

The weekend of the 5th – 7th, has FUN, SEX and GAY written indelibly through it like a particularly thick and sticky stick of Brighton Rock! Personally, we're going to channel Lenora Crichlow's character in that totes amaze, Brighton-set lesbian sitcom, Sugar Rush! Remember her? She basically spent the whole time applying lip gloss and shagging hot chavs, and funnily enough that's exactly how we intend to spend our time too.

So, what are YOU gonna do? Because you are going. Like, there's no two ways about it babes. The tickets are booked. We went on the computer and did it while you were reading the last two paragraphs. So you're going. SO WHAT ARE YOU GONNA DO THERE? Well, luckily for you, we've made a list. We love lists, because they're easy journalism, and we're mostly drunk while we write stuff, so the easier the better really.

Compliment Dua Lipa's cannabis-print jeggings

She WILL be wearing cannabis print jeggings, and you WILL compliment them. Dua Lipa is a friend to QX, did you know that? We've interviewed her twice. We might hang with her in the VIP lounge. Probably not. We'll probably just yell "Hey Dua! Over here!" and she'll give an embarrassed, clueless wave, then whisper "Christ, they look wasted" to her PA.

DECORATE A CHINTZY HOTEL ROOM WITH TOILET PAPER

We've stayed in many a chintzy hotel b&b. You know the ones! Avocado bathroom sweets. Magnolia flock wallpaper. A tray with a £5 kettle, a few sachets of instant coffee and, if you're lucky, a couple of Nice biscuits. Well, it all looks much more fun and much less bleak, if you festoon it with toilet paper! It looks like a scatological wonderland. Lovely.

Get some fish and chips

And have them with a lip-puckering amount of salt and vinegar. It doesn't count unless there's salt and vinegar. You must also throw at least one chip at a seagull whilst screeching "GERRAWAY!". You must also place a chip on a friend's shoulder, take a picture, and upload it to social media with the caption "[Insert Name] has got a right chip on his shoulder!"

Sunday Sundae PRIDE REUNION

Go to the Sunday Sundae party!

It's been a notorious hive of salacious seaside shenanigans for years, and now it's BACK at iconic venue Patterns for a special rip-roaring Brighton Pride special! It's got a terrace that overlooks the sea, which you can stumble out on, and, depending on how basic you are, imitate Kate Winslet in Titanic. How original. Aww. Sunday Sundae starts at 3pm on Sunday 7th August at Patterns.

Do the parade

Pride parades are really good! There's nothing quite like collapsing under a rainbow flag whilst doing poppers to Turn Back Time by Cher (can we openly talk about doing poppers? Yes! They're legal! Are they? OH who cares. POPPERS POPPERS POPPERS). Anyway parades are lovely, and carry the core of the pride message. Publicly expressing who you are! Hurray!

Go to the Brut Party

PHWOAR! This is a London export known for hot, husky, hairy men. Is there anyone who DOESN'T like hot, husky, hairy men? Well, Simon Cowell doesn't actually, if One Direction's career trajectory is anything to go by. Hey Simon! Give Sinitta our love. Anyway Brut Brighton Pride starts at 11pm at Concorde 2, on Saturday 6th August.

GET DRUNK AND FALL ASLEEP ON THE BEACH

Actually don't. It's inadvisable for various reasons. But it's a nice idea isn't it!

Go and see Carly Rae Jepsen

The Jeggod is performing at Brighton Pride. Yes. Carly will be in our country. Within our grasp. Let's not let her leave. Let's elect her queen. Carly Rae Jepsen, first of her name. Queen of the anals and the fistmen. No, those weren't typos.

Go rockpooling

No, it's not a weird sexual activity you haven't heard of. It's actual rockpooling! Like, picking your way amongst barnacle-encrusted rocks with naught but a little plastic bucket and a sense of maritime wanderlust! You might find a crab! You might find an anemone! You find a used condom! Who knows!

Well, that's that! There's our two cents. Or rather, two pence. OMG the 2p machines! You have to play on the 2p machines. Right, that's the last one, promise. See ya there!

Gender As a Spectrum

What makes a man a man, and a woman a woman? Are there people who are neither male nor female – or even both? Nothing about gender identity is fixed. Its development is often a fluid process, changing throughout a lifetime. As a result, it is always highly subjective, each person perceiving and presenting their identity in their own individual way. Gender as a Spectrum is a series of portraits of people who have resisted typical gender norms – by questioning them, breaking through them, or turning them inside-out. Photographer Joseph Wolfgang Ohlert spoke to James Egan about his book and the process of creating it.

So first off Joseph, tell us a little about yourself and your previous work.

People would say I am a photographer. But when I moved to Berlin six years ago, I just started taking photos at parties and after-hours events with my disposable camera. Just to keep the memories. Now we have Instagram and I do that with my SmartPhone. Even though I'm not hanging around at after-hours that much anymore!

I wanted to study art the University of Arts but I didn't get a place, so I applied for the photography school and from there on I got really into it. I used a better camera and photographed my friends and people I met. I worked for magazine and put together some art/photo exhibitions, first in Berlin and then travelling around Europe in different cities. After I did my exams at photography school, I got into art university right away, so currently I am officially an art student. I don't consider myself a photographer really, more someone who works with the medium of photography as a way to express myself. But I don't really give a shit about labels. How others see my profession is up to them.

Your new book, Gender As a Spectrum, what inspired this?

As a queer person, I always was questioning what made me different from others; man, woman, gay, straight etc. What defines a person and who is the really "me" or "you", independent from the heteronormative stereotypes that are still stuck in society's consciousness. What do I want? How do I see myself without being influenced by how people think I have to be? The worst thing in life you can do is to lie to yourself. Since I have lived in Berlin, I have met so many great personalities who were questioning themselves the same way, both people who found their own answers or are still looking. I wanted to capture this. The whole book is portraits of different personalities. Some people think "oh yeah, this gender stuff, I don't understand, I don't have anything to do with it", which is stupid since every person on this planet has a gender identity. But this is not separated just as man and woman, it's your own identity. Your dick doesn't make you a man nor does a vagina makes you a woman. Gender identity comes from the inside and with this book, I wanted to give this message a face with the help of many individuals.

Can you describe what it is that fascinates you about gender?

Gender has no limits. I have a great fear of limiting myself. I don't wanna end up living my life only as a 'man'. I love my cock but I love myself more and I don't define myself in sex or gender categories, nor do I wanna define others. It's hard sometimes to break stereotypes since we have language barriers, but we are getting there.

What made you decide to self-publish the book?

There's not much difference in working with a publisher or self-publishing. Most of the press I do by myself and I have to pay all the printing costs. The only thing the publisher does is handling the marketing, so I wanted to try to do my first book by myself. It was also a personal decision. It's my baby, so I didn't want the name of a publisher on the cover: just mine and my co-author Kaey's. The book has a strong message and I wanted to let it stand for itself. It's supposed to be independent.

Where did you find the subjects for the portraits? How did you get into contact with them?

Kaey, my co-author, introduced me to many of her friends and when I started travelling, social media helped me a lot. We live in a queer bubble, but it's a big one when we use the Internet the right way! I'm happy I had the chance to meet such interesting personalities, get to know them and create something together.

What were you looking for with each person you shot? What draws you to someone to shoot with them?

We just started with people we know. There wasn't really a concept at the beginning. We were just looking for people who live their lives as they want to, independent from the biological sex they are born with. I didn't want to do a lexicon of gender (as if that would even be possible). My book is collection of portraits of people.

You worked closely with another artist named Kaey; tell us about her.

The first time I met Kaey was in the most popular queer club in Berlin called SCHWUZ. I told her she reminded me of my mother, which I meant in a good way, but she was pretty pissed about it since apparently a lot of guys have said the same to her. I apologized the next day and we got to know each other. She knew about my work and started to hire me for portrait jobs for the queer city magazine Siegessäule, where she does the art direction. In addition to that, she does a lot of different stuff. She's mostly known as a singer and stage performer.

Your dick doesn't make you a man nor does a vagina makes you a woman

What was Kaey's role in creating the book?

Kaey was doing the interviews and text editing. Since she is a trans woman herself and because of her profession as a writer and art director, she was the right person to work with on this book. When I started doing the first portraits for "Gender as a Spectrum" I didn't really know anything. I knew there was more but couldn't name it. Kaey helped to understand what we were actually doing and why it is so important.

The book is in both German and English, is this correct?

Yes! It was important to me that the book would be also internationally available. So we decided to put an English translation in the back of the book. I must say the text work was the most annoying part. Even after 10 people read the book to check if everything was correct, we still found spelling mistakes.

Where can we obtain the book?

You can order it via info@ohlert.de but be quick, as it's a limited edition of 1000!

Any upcoming projects that readers of the book may also find of interest?

I am opening my own gallery in November in the middle of Berlin (Mitte). It's supposed to be a playground for creative workers in different fields. I wanna do more books and magazines and have exhibitions and launch parties. I have already found a great group of people I am working with, so this is going to be something exciting. Also I just finished my second book called "DARLINGS!" which will be published by Bruno Gmünder in September. It's like a 90's-style teenage diary with a lot of selfies, ex-lovers, friends and my regular work from the last few years. You can even spot my cock somewhere in it. Not that this would be something special but this is my diary, and I just love nice dickpics.

Best Peripheral Characters in

SEX AND THE CITY

PART DEUX

A few weeks ago, in one of our most insane and abstract editorial decisions ever, we wrote a feature on the best peripheral characters in Sex & The City. And guess what... EVERYONE LOVED IT! And by "everyone loved it" we mean we saw a man in Bloc Bar put his pint down on it. If that's not an endorsement, we don't know what is!

Anyway, because it was such an unmitigated success (someone also commented "lol" on it on our Facebook page!) we've decided to do a part two! Or, as Carrie would say in Paris, part deux! She also said "bone-jower" (her version of "bonjour" one assumes), then fell over in Dior. I FELL. IN DIOR.

So here it is, another selection of the salacious satire's most memorable minor characters. They're mostly dysfunctional sluts, which of course we love because we are also dysfunctional sluts.

Claire Ann

Do you like spunky women? Claire-Ann certainly does, as she proudly informs Samantha after they engage in a tug-of-war over a pashmina in Barney's, ending with Samantha threatening to Jackie Chan the fuck out of C-Ann. Claire Ann is a big Southern broad with no shame and for a hot minute Samantha feels like she's found her soulmate. Somebody who won't recoil in horror every time she wants to talk about the taste of her fella's jizz or try pegging! But, as it turns out, even Samantha has a limit and that limit is a public beej under the dinner table. As Claire-Ann chows down on toyboy cock in the middle of a restaurant, Samantha grabs her purse, climbs over the swaying table and gets up outta there, ignoring Claire Ann's muffled calls for her to wait. Honestly, Claire, talking with a mouthful of dick? No CLASS!

Maria

Maria played Samantha's firey Latina girlfriend! Now, considering it was mostly written and produced by gay men, Sex & The City actually got a lot of things woefully wrong in the LGBT department. Like, its portrayal of the gay community was, erm, questionable. The only two significant gay characters were bitter queens who ended up marrying each other, presumably because they couldn't find anyone else. And that episode where Carrie snogs Alanis Morrissette then has an existential crisis, all whilst wearing a ridiculous leather dress with a white carnation on it. Please. But Samantha's storyline with Maria was lovely. It was her first proper intimate relationship on the show, and it sort of made total sense that the only person capable of taming Samantha would be another woman. BUT IT ALL ENDED IN TEARS. Maria twirling around Samantha's kitchen smashing plates. "You want fireworks?! BAH-BING! And another little firework? BADA-BING!"

Laney Berlin

We've all got that one girlfriend haven't we? The one who you let out of your sight for two seconds, and before you know it she's against a wall breaking an ecstasy pill in half with one hand and tossing off Jamie from Made In Chelsea with the other. Well Laney was the Sex & The City version of that. Boobs and beer! Cowboy hats and cocaine! She randomly stands up on a coffee table and says "WHO WANTS TO SEE MY TITS?" She does this whilst pregnant and drunk. Sensational.

Sarah Michelle Gellar's crap cameo

We covered Geri Halliwell's crap cameo in part 1, so now it's time for Sarah Michelle Gellar's. Now, it wasn't as crap as Geri Halliwell's. Nothing is or will ever be as crap as Geri Halliwell's. But SMG's gave it a run for its money. Not for bad acting (although there was bad acting), but more for just forgettability. We can't even remember what it was. It was in those two LA episodes that also had Matthew McConaughey (who, for the record, we HATE). SMG played a... script commissioner? Production manager? Or something? Like, really, who cares. The only good thing about those two episodes was Mr Dildo.

Magda

Magda is fab, she's one of the only people who stood up to Miranda's abject insanity. When she first pops up, it becomes clear she hasn't come to play, as she hides Miranda's vibrator and tells her to get in the fucking kitchen and bake some pies to catch a man. Miranda is having NONE of this because as far she's concerned the only pie she's interested in is cream. Not even a statue of the Virgin Mary can sway her on that. After that, an uneasy truce is forged and Magda eventually grows to become part of the strange Brady-Hobbes family. So much so that she actually has more maternal feelings over Miranda's child than Miranda does. Our favourite bit though is when she catches Ms Hobbes selflessly giving Steve's stroke-addled mother a bath, later declaring that Miranda is capable of selfless love. Miranda's okay with that, as long as they don't tell Steve. Oh, here's a picture of Magda in Hunger Games. Just Because. →

Jenny Brier and her pals

OOOH these three were right ones weren't they! Remember when Samantha gets hired to organize an event for a 13 year old girl and gets all jealous of her because she HAS IT ALL at the age of 13. Well that 13 year old is played by none other than Kat Dennings, in the first role of an illustrious career (well, not that illustrious, we're getting carried away). She arrives at a restaurant with two sluggy little pals in tow, who flip their hair and flip their flip phones, and make quips about sucking off the Backstreet Boys. "I'd fuck them. I'd fuck them AND their gay boyfriends." Jesus CHRIST Sex & The City was a ratchet mess wasn't it.

Bitzy Von Muffling

Bitzy is the fiancée of notorious homosexual Bobby Fine. Bitzy is also a biological woman, which gives Carrie all kinds of things to whine about at length in her stupid column, including some bizarre obsession with the term 'zsa-zsa-zsu'. Clearly she doesn't disapprove of the union enough to turn down a ticket to their lavish wedding in the Hamptons though. Mainly because she is a selfish little cunt and GOD we HATE Carrie. But anyway, Bitzy gets married to Bobby in a wonderfully camp ceremony and then later pops up to tell Charlotte about how she managed to get pregnant at age sixty. In-vitro fertilization, of course.

Lucille

Remember when Miranda's mom died, so she has to go to Philadelphia while Samantha's busy searching New York high and low for her lost orgasm? And how Carrie somehow makes Miranda's mother dying ALL ABOUT HER???? You do? Oh good. Well we're talking about that episode. Anyway, there's that bit where Miranda's trying to pick out a new bra in a Philly JC Penney, when a rather corpulent lady named Lucille busts into her dressing room and tries size up her tits. Miranda is a hands-off, Type A-type lady, so this goes down like a fart in a hot car. She tells her to get her fucking hands out of her boulder holder, to which Lucille replies "I'M NOT BEING FRESH DEAR, I think I know what's best". Then Miranda goes into meltdown over her dead mom and they have a lovely hug while Lucille adjusts Randy's bra straps. We found this picture of Lucille on Google. We're not sure what's happening either.

Can you hear that? It's the gentle sound of tongues being sharpened and claws being readied for the scene's comedy roast of Myra Dubois. A spit of biblical proportions is being erected in the RVT to which La DuBois will be tied and turned. Taking turns on this spit of scorn will be Lola Lasagne, Mary Mac, Mrs Moore and Holestarr, all peace-keeping skills will be exercised by Ginger Johnson. It's going to get hilariously dirty! Let the games commence. All ticket proceeds go to Terrence Higgins Trust, produced by QX Magazine and the RVT.

LE

out Le Cock
satisfaction.”

To paraphrase Daft Punk, when it comes to cock, you can either kiss it, stroke it, suck it, ride it or you can go down to Old Street on a Friday night and tune it, play it, work it, dance it. Martyn Fitzgerald, Jamie Bull and Hifi Sean (who's just released his latest single with Paris Grey) were the DJs on duty to make us do just that at this week's edition of Le Cock at that notorious den of iniquity that is East Bloc. All three are regulars of the night and know exactly which buttons to push and which selection of house, RnB, pop remixes and Italo mash-ups it takes to pleasure our ears and make us lose control of our feet. There's plenty on offer out there but, as we all know, it's important to always check out Le Cock for maximum satisfaction. A club so rudely named (even with a touch of gallic class for emphasis) can only mean trouble... of the good kind.

“Can’t wait to return again for another sultry sweaty Saturday.”

Saturday night was the debut of Kiddy Smile at East Bloc. Recently signed to defected records, his house jams complemented sets from Guy Williams and Martyn Fitzgerald. The night had a good mix of club kids, and sporty dancers with a special edition of a Vogue Ball group over from Holland throwing their best shapes on the dance floor. Photographically, the addition of a light stand and radio triggers let photographer

Victor Hensel-Coe turn one corner of East Bloc into fabulous photo booth where crazy kids came to give their best face on one condition- that they climb on each other as fashionably possible. Can’t wait to return again for another sultry sweaty Saturday out east!

"It was red hot. It was perfection."

Imagine that: it's Friday evening and after a seemingly endless week at work, you're finally out with your mates in one of your favourite places, enjoying the thought that for the next couple of days you can relax a bit and have fun. The place is buzzing, more and more so as the DJ plays one banging pop tune after another, and suddenly, after a not-even-that-well known song by good old Madge, a bit of Whitney and a roof-raising rendition of Rollin' on the River that has everyone singing along, something suddenly shifts and the joint simply explodes. Exultation has broken out and there is no going back. This is pretty much how things went down on Friday at the Dalston Superstore for the latest edition of WUT? Club. The DJ was Shay Malt, though TafkaNIK, SEHER, and the good people of Attack Attack Attack also had a go at the decks that night. Helping with the general merriment was that gaggle of gorgeous drag queens, the Elasticated Bottoms, with support from the Twinnies in their space suit. It was red hot. It was perfection. And you know you badly missed out. Deal with it!

The Night Time Industries Association

The NTIA, or Night Time Industries Association, is exactly what it sounds like: A collective initiative forging ties in one of the UK's most lucrative industries – nightlife!

At QX we're obviously big advocates not only of London's world-famous, uniquely varied nightlife scene, but the whole of the UK's. As a nation, we have one of the most significant and widespread clubbing and after-hours cultures, with London, Birmingham, Manchester and Bristol leading the charge in revolutionary and inventive nights.

However as we all know, our days of dancing 'til dawn and joyful glowstick hedonism could be numbered. Nearly half of the UK's nightclubs have closed in the last ten years, with more under threat seemingly every month. In particular, gay venues have fallen prey to skyrocketing rents, and development from corporate juggernauts. It started with the demolishing of the beloved Astoria, and gathered momentum from there.

"Clubs are incredibly important. This is where the culture has thrived and grown."
– Steve Aoki

"We're living in a time where the government likes to create media sensations around one topic or another. It's not about them trying to save lives or change culture, it's about who can keep themselves in the spotlight for the longest. Decisions are being made by people who are too old or too out of touch with what's happening in the modern world. And it's not just in the UK, it's part of a global problem." – Seth Troxler

You can follow what's going on the #nightlifematters hashtag, or to get involved, go to ntia.co.uk

KU ORANGE
TWENTY

DALSTON
Superstore

The NTIA has created a campaign to prevent things like this from happening again. It's called Nightlife Matters, and aims to emphasise the importance of nightlife, and bring it into the consciences of the men sitting in offices who make decisions without actually having been to a nightclub in their lives.

Now, three venues from the three points of the London gay scene triangle are joining forces with the NTIA to prevent more closures from happening. Ku Group in Soho; Orange Group in Vauxhall; and Dalston Superstore in East London. They'll work with the lovely people at the NTIA to keep the city's nightlife as colourful and bustling as ever, and to help preserve both their own venues, and other gay venues around the city.

THE R & SHE HUNNIES ARE MOVING HOUSE!

Popular queer hip-hop night R & She are SO popular, that they have to keep moving to bigger venues to accommodate the fabulous throngs of cargo-pants-wearing, Lil-Kim-emulating, rum-and-coke-swilling creatures of the night that turn up (and get turned UP) every month! Amaze! Being too crowded is ALWAYS a good sign for a club night, and it's no surprise that R & She are the latest to be befallen by this agreeable affliction.

They've been up and coming scene SUPERSTARS over the last few months, with meteoric online and word-of-mouth traction! Yes! Of course it helps that the playlist is major, the DJs are all totes gorgeous with cheeky grins and killer fashun, and the crowd are LIVE. ING. We went to their birthday party a couple of months back, and the place was more lit than Kim Kardashian's Snapchat!

Another personal highlight for us was that absolutely bloody fierce Brandy poster they had recently. Colours. Looks. Aesthetics. All the yeses.

So YES, they've upped sticks and can now be permanently found at Old Street den of inequity, Trapeze! It's a great fir for R & She. It's got a high ceiling and electricity, which is more than most of our flats have. It's also got lovely décor – PROPER urban chic. Not a flock wallpaper in sight.

So, whether you're a Beyonce babe or a Soniq slut, pop on a bandana and get down to R & She! Don't come if you like Taylor Swift though. Just don't.

R & She

The next R & She is on Saturday 30th July.
Trapeze, 89 Great Eastern Street, EC2A 3HX.
10pm – 3:30am. £4 before 11pm, £8 after.

Blanc De Blanc The Hippodrome Casino's sumptuous new show!

Roll up, roll up ladies and gentlemen! And roll into the glistening glissade of light and colour that is the Hippodrome Casino in Leicester Square! It's certainly fair to say that the Hippodrome is one of the city's major hubs of cosmopolitan glamour, attracting everything from handsome suited and booted Saudi businessmen, to stars of the screen and stage. Surely Eva Green's been spotted there, slinking around in a black velvet cocktail dress, Swarovski earrings glinting in the light.

Have we painted enough of a picture for you? Good. Because now we're going to talk about the SHOW! It's Blanc De Blanc, and it's a sizzling, kaleidoscopic sensation! It lifts a silver dome to reveal a steaming platter of vintage, crushed-satin glamour in the form of a titillating amalgamation of cabaret and acrobatics. It's from the people behind world smash hits like Limbo, Cantina and, most importantly, MADONNA'S REBEL HEART TOUR. Hopefully no-one will fall down the stairs in this one.

Blanc De Blanc is on at The Hippodrome Casino, Crandbourn Street, WC2H 7JH, until 28th August. 7:30pm, tickets from £15.

BEYOND ENTERPRISE SEXIEST STARSHIP TROOPERS

The Beyond Enterprise is preparing for interstellar flight on Sunday 31st July, with an (sigh, forgive us) OUT OF THIS WORLD DJ line-up including PAGANO and more extraterrestrial tunes than you can shake your fazer at. So in celebration of this, James Egan hand picked some of his favourite intergalactic hunks, who he'd love to see shaking their ass on the Enterprise this weekend...

Harrison Ford – Blade Runner

YES we know he's in Star Wars too but he looked MUCH hotter in Blade Runner, so you're just going to have to deal with it. Just look at that jaw. We'd have a run on HIS blade. And we don't even know what the really means.

WE'D HAVE A RUN ON HIS BLADE.

Colin Farrell – Total Recall (2012)

Full disclosure: haven't even seen this film. But it's Colin Farrell. The man makes your knicks slip off just by looking at you with those big brown eyes and furrowing that Basque brow. Oh my God. Colin. Take me. Remember when he went on a date with Britney? WHY DIDN'T YOU BREED WITH THAT ONE BRITNEY YOU ABSOLUTE NUTTER!?! Okay here's a pic for you, because we need to go and calm down.

OH MY GOD.
COLIN.
TAKE ME.

Young William Shatner – Star Trek

It's hard to picture William Shatner without thinking of him crooning "She's beauty, she's grace, she's Miss United States..." in Miss Congeniality, but once upon a time he was actually pretty hot. Back when he debuted in the first-ever series of Star Trek, he had something of the Marlon Brando about him. And THAT may just be the queerest sentence we have ever typed.

HE HAD SOMETHING
MARLON
ABOUT HIM

Stormtroopers – Star Wars

You can't see their face, but you can see their COCK. Oh Jesus, that all went to seed a bit quickly. Lol. Seed. OKAY ENOUGH. It's weird but kinky and there's even a gay Stormtrooper gangbang porn so it's CLEARLY a thing and we are not alone in this. Plus it turns out Hector De Silva is hiding under one of those suits, so even if it takes a hundred... we're trying our suerte.

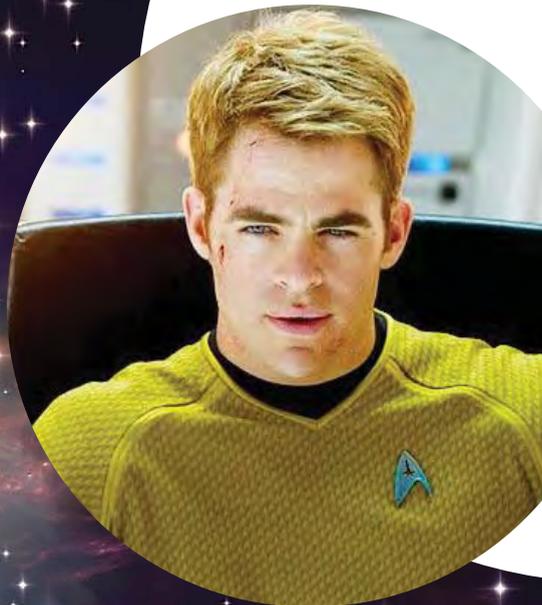

THERE'S EVEN A GAY STORMTROOPER
GANGBANG PORN

Chris Pratt – Guardians of the Galaxy

Ohhh, well, everybody loves a transformation and for his role in the blockbuster space comedy...thing, Chris Pratt definitely transformed. Going from that chunky (but fucking sexy) Andy on Parks & Rec, to a chiselled and buff space superhero on the big screen. We'd have him both ways (but we've got a soft spot for his chubbier days in truth, we like a big boy here at QX).

WE LIKE A BIG BOY HERE AT QX

Chris Pine – Star Trek (2009 film)

Bit too perfect, but come on, the guy is like a living Ken doll. People are into that. So we've heard.

THE GUY IS LIKE A LIVING KEN DOLL

Jayne – Firefly/Serenity

The hero of Canton, the man they call JAYNE! Oh my god, he's sexy. He also calls his cock his 'swinging cod', carries a massive gun and seems to be openly bisexual. Plus Firefly and Serenity are two of Joss Whedon's finest works. Yes, we here at QX know our sci-fi. Well, enough to score with hot nerds at least. Anyway Jayne's hot as fuck and watching him lick his hunting knife DOES THINGS to us.

WATCHING HIM LICK HIS HUNTING KNIFE DOES THINGS TO US.

Buzz Lightyear – Toy Story

So. Okay. Yeah, he's a toy. And he's never been to space. And he's actually just a PIXAR animation but... we sort of...would? He's big and dumb and valiant. We ESPECIALLY would in Toy Story 3 when his factory settings get set to Spanish. Que fuerte, Señor Años Luz, follarme!

BEYOND

Beyond Enterprise is on Sunday 31st July at Fire (South Lambeth Road, SW8 1RT), 4am – Superlate. £11 advance tickets by clicking the ticket link above and the usual soho vendors. £3 off by 7am with concession guestlist/NUS card/flyer/hospitality payslip

It's a strange beauty to find a performing artist where every scene of their show is A-grade in its artistry, hilarity and political message, but it's even better to feel that the message received is more powerful than the sum of its stunning parts. It was this Edinburgh preview show where Aussie feminist tour de force BETTY GRUMBLE trashed and tore apart the Glory disguised as (to name a few): the oil tycoon patriarch who claws treacle life from a paper earth before eating it; she re-imagines in horrifying bodily goo detail what the girl the Pussycat Dolls were describing in Dontcha could really be like, and was the eighties VHS fitness instructor who made lighting a sparkler in a place light doesn't reach a compelling protest of the female body. Her deranged wit, impeccable timing, and fantastic bag of references are the result of a perfectly constructed and realised stage persona. We can't wait to experience your divine insanity again!

Saturday night saw the KlubKidz stage another of their regular FlashBack takeovers of the White Swan as DJs Jason Prince and Matt Unique joined resident Stevie Tee on the decks for a journey through 80s and 90s disco right thru to bang up to date house classics. The mostly local audience of east end totty was treated to a fantastic show from the first lady of disco and soul, Miss Angie Brown with a set of covers like Cher's 'Believe' and Kylie's 'Better The Devil' as well as some of her own hits with Bizarre inc like 'I'm Gonna get You' and 'Playing With Knives'. Always an amazingly energetic and fun performer, Angie was on good form and kicked off her shoes to sing and dance thru the crowd. The White Swan itself has had a major refurb and is now a gleaming east end palace of chrome and marble with a great new terrace out the front, and next month it's the old girls 31st birthday (the White Swan not Liam) with a whole host of guests including our Eurovision entrants Joe and Jake.

LIGHT LOUNGE

The Light Lounge is the West End's hottest new cocktail bar for discerning and sophisticated homos and the newest to the Ku family. After a soft launch a few months ago, the Lounge has now officially taken up the mantle of the newest gay bar in town.

It's pure style throughout, from the lavish décor and sumptuous sofas, through to the fashionably-named SS16 cocktail menu.

It's clear that Gary Henshaw and Ku Group have worked hard to create a calm and classy oasis in the centre of London's buzzing nightlife, with the signature Ku elegance running through its DNA, whilst still feeling distinctly different.

Want a place to take a special guy you're getting to know? This is it. Curl up on one of the couches, sipping a Sugar Mama cocktail (they are delicious) and subtly stroke his arm as you giggle about where you grew up. You won't be distracted by drunken hen parties or your own sudden urge to bust out the Oops I Did It Again choreo. It's a totes-glam, upper-echelon affair up there in the Light Lounge. Think cocktails with Carrie Bradshaw. Think whiskey chasers with the Mad Men. Think DE-LUXE. That's the Light Lounge.

A Hoyle New World

David Hoyle is the avant-garde performer and force of nature who never shies away from speaking his mind. A Hoyle show is much more than just a show, it is a fascinating insight into the world we live in, a roller coaster of questioning and exploration, through live performance, art and comedy, presented with a unique type of passion and angst.

As David prepares for the grand finale of his Mega Thursday shows at Bethnal Green Working Men's Club this week, and at a time when the world has been at its most turbulent in recent years, with the rise of a demagogue, civil unrest, corruption, coups, bigotry and racism, political revolutions, and authoritarianism, David tells us why he thinks the world is in the state it is now.

“ I think we're in this state, because love is not considered a necessary component to decision-making. We live in a world which sadly is running out of control.

White supremacy and patriarchy are threatened. It is their last stand! The times we live in are reminiscent of the 1930s, which was the age of the dictators. Today's Mussolini is Trump. The times are also reminiscent of the build up to the First World War. It is conceivable, that soon the world will conflate into ALL OUT & TOTAL WAR.

There are so many war-hungry entities, including NATO. There are so many nuclear weapons, more now than ever. It seems inevitable that as they stockpile, the pressure and temptation to push the button will be hard for the sub-humans, who rule over us, to resist.

There are hotspots all over the world, including Ukraine and the Baltic States. They are vulnerable to global power politics. The armaments manufacturers will wish to profit handsomely by the various divisions, which fragment our world, so will do anything and everything, to provoke. Which will result in TOTAL WAR.

There's money to be made in maiming and mass-murder, yet we seem to refuse to learn from history. That we, the masses, are lied to and are victims of the most heinous propaganda.

Not even a plastic Union Jack, or a smile from a seemingly benign nonagenarian, can save us now. The brainwashing we are subjected to by the self-interested elite is now almost at critical mass.

We must decide if we're going to roll over and allow thee Global Elite total fascistic control over us.

To be obedient and scared? If we don't embrace love and fellowship, then maybe as a species it's time to become EXTINCT?! See you on the other side.

TAINED LOVE QUEEN!

Is Marc Almond the rampant, wet dream Demon Queen of heterosexual nightmares? A shockingly sexual love bomber, manically devoted to demolishing the cosy, dozy Twin Towers of mediocrity and homemaking? Why, just by hinting at astounding ecstasies, he's torturing millions of married heterosexuals worldwide, all trapped in their endless, wet-nappy hells, perpetually exiled from orgasms!

No wonder seething, mass closet-case envy once fueled a vicious, gutter-press lie that Marc was deathly ill from swallowing gallons of spunk. Even if it were humanly possible – which I'd love to attempt! – doesn't that slur just blatantly expose the secret cravings of a deeply repressed, Little Britain? Truly, it's far more likely to suggest a constant stream of dubiously-pleasured MPs being emergency stomach-pumped at A&E!

Still, let's get back to Marc's earliest, publicly provocative appearance - his 1981, Top of the Pops TV appearance singing 'Tainted Love'. Sure, Bowie had blatantly mind-fucked the British public big-time years previously, but then furiously back-pedalled on an admission that he'd 'always been gay'. Marc, however, didn't need to say a word – his appearance screamed it!

Tiny, wistful, bashfully peeking through smoky, Dusty Springfield-thick eyeliner, Marc was a riveting picture of elfin, existentialist elegance, an alarmingly androgynous torch-singer. And in late 1981, in dreary, mass unemployed England, even the concept of a man singing 'Tainted Love' gob-smacked homophobes nationwide! Dear God in pussy-whipped heaven, what had they been missing all their lives?

They soon found out. Non-stop Erotic Cabaret - Marc's debut, Soft Cell album – unleashed a storm of pin-sharp pop perversions, including the glorious 'Sex Dwarf', 'Seedy Films' and 'Secret Life'. And back then – despite the imminent, gender-bender excesses of Boy George and Pete Burns lurking in the wings – Marc had no appreciable, artistic competition.

Remember, way before his future, heroin hell and ultimate musical Renaissance, Boy George stressed how much he preferred tea to sex on endless, granny-friendly chat-shows. Well, he was deliberately building a family-friendly audience by avoiding any hint of controversy, while Pete Bunn's hugely upfront, gay ballsiness horrified straight, timid pop-fans!

Marc, however – much more wisely – never alienated or underestimated his die-hard admirers. Immediately aware of a vast, untapped and deeply appreciative audience for lushly conflicted sexual artistry, he brilliantly raised his lyrical and expressive gifts. As single-minded as the Marquis de Sade tirelessly tonguing a whore's arsehole, Marc, always, has valued risky pop edginess over predictable pap.

For decades, he's conducted a non-stop, erotic exploration that's probed the furthest, possible reaches of passionate torch-songs and eloquent depravity found in Europe's chanson tradition. Screw any dumb, backdated notion of Marc as a twee, pop-singing pixie – these days, he's globally respected as an interpretive singer, arguably way beyond Gaga!

You want proof? Me, I'm demanding a rush, DVD release of Marc's latest triumph, his spectacular July 10th concert at London's Royal Festival Hall, showcasing 35 years of uncompromising excellence. Backed by a full orchestra and choir from his former hometown Leeds, Marc made slow, furiously tantalising love to his vast, torch-song repertoire. But finally, his unhinged, no-holds-barred 'Tainted Love' detonated a spontaneous, capacity-crowd orgasm, with punters uncontrollably swamping the stage!

You want more? Don't despair – Marc's mammoth, 10CD retrospective – The Trials of Eyeliner – comes out in October. So, why rely on your incomplete, inevitably drug-fucked impressions of seeing Marc live? Soon, you can repeatedly pleasure yourselves with Marc's most brilliant, fabulously obscure rarities in the privacy of your own rooms. Gee, whoever said mental masturbation was dull? Not me!

Up Your Rug

It's time to cut a rug, because the legendary Carpet Burn returns to Eagle London on Saturday 30th of June. We had a chat with the lads to find out what's in store!

Fun - Poppers - Party!!

Carpet burn is back! We're pleased as punch, how did this happen?

Yes, it sure is, back with a BANG! A return has been on the cards for a while and what better time than to celebrate the 20th anniversary of The Spice Girls? We also wanted our Carpet Burn customers to come and enjoy our new refit with our incredible new sound system, laser lights and HD Screens, plus of course our beautiful beer garden that's just perfect for summer nights.

We get the feeling from the poster that the Fab Five might be involved...

The Fab Five are involved yes! They are our inspiration behind our visuals, the party theme and the amazing drink offers on the night. The walls of the venue now change colour and will do so five times throughout the night, representing one of the Spice Girls cocktail offers!

What are the 241 SPICE cocktails?

When the walls change colour and are say, Red for Geri, during that time the Geri cocktail will be available.

QUESTION: Is Geri Halliwell nee Horner mad. Like, mad as box of frogs?

Of course Geri Halliwell's a wee bit mad, but that's why we love her, don't we? We Brits are a tad eccentric and I guess we can all relate to one of the Spice Girls :)

Have you ever had a carpet burn, and HOW did you get it?

Yes!! How do you think? Not from Hoovering, let's put it that way!

What is your favourite variety of carpet? We like big thick paisley ones.

Tufted shag! They are 'kinder' on the Carpet Burn front!

If you could pick ANY celebrity to turn up on the night, who would it be and why?

I think it would be Divine & Grace Jones. Carpet Burn is one of Eagle London's more Spontaneous nights. We never know who could walk through those doors or what the hell could happen? Divine & Grace Jones were & are both very spontaneous icons. They would have fitted in & LOVED Carpet Burn. Everyone is free to be themselves at Carpet Burn and we celebrate each other's differences.

Describe Carpet Burn's ethos in three words

Fun - Poppers - Party!

What carpety tunes can we expect?

The best of pop from the 80's, 90's & 00's with SPICE!!!

What are your plans for the future? Are there more Carpet Burns on the horizon?

Once you have one Carpet Burn there's always more to follow! Each one will tingle a little differently but still have that burning sensation that stays with you long after the last dance. Watch this Spice! I mean 'space'.

CHILDHOOD CRUSHES

WELL here's another ridiculous article about inappropriate, Freudian crushes on bizarre men. Ladies and gentlemen, QX Magazine! *Takes off hat, bows*. This time, it's CHILDHOOD CRUSHES! Those ripple-torsoed, rosary-bead-wearing, eyebrow-pierced adonises that gave you your first wee tingle downstairs when you were a bairn! Sorry, we've gone all Scottish! That Silver Summer is to blame. She's one giraffe short of a zoo that one. Helloooo dear!

Anyway, these hair-gelled honeyz won bedroom wall poster status. Or, if you were in the closet, torn out of magazines and hidden in your underwear drawer status. If there are any iconic ones we've missed, tweet us @QXMagazine, and we won't reply.

STEVE JONES
OFF OF T4

PHWOOOAR yeah sweetie! We all pulled a sickie from school to sit on the sofa and wank over Steve Jones didn't we. Did we? Well, WE did. He had it all – the biceps, the Welsh accent, the olive skin, the same polo shirt in a hundred different shades of pastel. That was back in the golden days of T4, when Miquita Oliver still had a nose and June Sarpong still had a voice. Then Steve Jones tried to "break America" and we never saw him again. He's probably on all fours in a cage in Melania Trump's basement. Hot.

PETE OFF
BROTHER

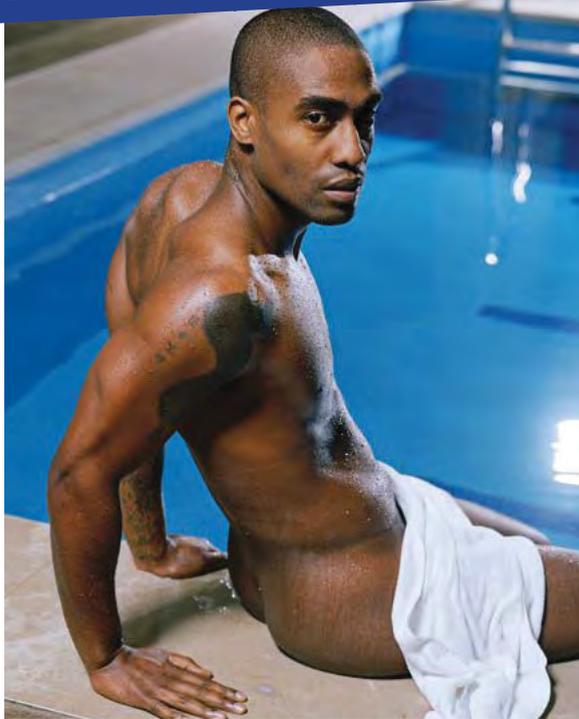

Now, this is a bit of a niche choice but we know we're not alone in it. He was so lovely and cheeky, and had right nice teeth. He's the sort of chap you'd get off with at a rave in Bristol, then wake up with in a field somewhere. He was all about bandanas and camouflage trousers which, if you know any QX journalists, are not too far off from our personal brand #branding

THE DAD
OFF OF MY PARENTS ARE ALIENS

This was a really weird one. Actually, we take it back. Forget we said anything.

SIMON OFF OF BLUE

Come THROOOOUGH Simon from Blue! Cheekbones for days! Yas kween! Totes the hottest member. Sorry Duncan. You could grate cheese on those abs. Which leads us nicely into our next crush...

CRAIG OFF OF CORRIE

We were OBSESSED with Craig off of Corrie, and so jealous of that slag Rosie Webster, she didn't deserve him. She didn't even have to try, just whapped on a crop top he was wrapped around her little finger. He was exactly how we like our men – hot, straight and dumb.

ABS OFF OF FIVE

Abs from the popular (well, not that popular) boyband, Five! Abs looks like a right sort. He'd finger you behind the bike sheds then eat Dairylea Dunkers without washing his hands.

JOEY OFF OF FRIENDS

Joey was the ONLY fit male Friend really wasn't he. Ross was too goofy and Chandler was a right screwface. And, actually, Matt Leblanc has only got better with age, he's a right silver fox now! And he just looks like he's got a nice big thick cock.

KIERA KNIGHTLEY OFF OF MOVIES

From the moment we saw her rushing breathily around a ship on Pirates of The Caribbean, Keira Knightley was our weird gay/closet/bisexual crush. You know the person you TELL everyone at school you fancy, when actually you fancy the dad from My Parents Are Aliens. We're not sure why it was Keira Knightley. Probably because she has the body of an eighteen-year-old twink.

West 5 turns 18!

Nestled down a side street in South Ealing, is a beautiful tudor beam-clad building, which also happens to be a big bangin' gay club/pub/performance venue, West 5! And this Saturday, they're turning eighteen years old.

Eighteen years of raucous cabaret acts, cute students dancing to Rihanna, Drag Race contestants scaling the walls of the smoking area, and general wonderful gay hedonism and debauchery.

What was YOUR eighteenth birthday like? We can't remember ours, which means it must have been good. Memories of hurling bottles of poppers into the Thames.

Anyway, to appreciate the most of this unprecedentedly Mediterranean weather, West 5's eighteenth will be a daytime affair, with a lovely outdoor stage. And you can guarantee there'll be bunting. There's ALWAYS bunting. We love a bit of bunting!

The yummy mummies and car salesmen of West London won't know what hit them, because there's a STELLAR (or at least, Stella), lineup of some of the city's best-loved drag and cabaret performers.

It's hosted by crispy-topped catty kween Lola Lasagne. There's shimmering, shiny-shod showpony Topsy Redfern. There's the infamously teetotal and occasionally elegant Baga Chipz. There's club banger connoisseur Angie Brown. And a bunch of others! Get down there, get yourself a Pimms, and enjoy!

West 5's 18th Birthday Extravaganza is on Saturday 30th July, Pope's Lane, W5 4NB. Outdoor stage from 2:30pm - 7pm, indoor stage from 11pm. Free before 8pm, £5 after.

RUBBER REUNION at The Hoist

It's all about rubber on the fetish scene at the moment! And Rubber Reunion is at the helm of the shiny, squeaky ship! Manning the wheel in a bodysuit, looking out for rubbery krakens.

The rubber scene has undergone an evolution along with its burgeoning popularity. At Rubber Reunion they're a welcoming bunch, making room for anything from head-to-toe rubber gorgeousness at the more hardcore end of the spectrum, to Rubber-Lite like shorts or shirts at the other end of the spectrum. One thing that's certain, there's something for everyone!

Now they've found a perfectly suited new venue in the form of labyrinthine den of debauchery, The Hoist in Vauxhall. Its dusky halls make a perfect lair for the fabulous group of Rubber Reunion miscreants.

We spoke to Rubber Reunion head honcho Charlie, and he gave us a bit of a back-story.

"Rubber Reunion started in February 2013 at Backstreet. It was born out of frustration. The fetish scene seemed to be filling up with guys who were only wearing a token amount of fetish kit. Me and my rubber mates, who are passionate about rubber gear, felt that there wasn't really anywhere that really catered for us. So Rubber Reunion was born. We were pleasantly surprised with the turnout at our first night and from there it went from strength to strength. The feedback was very positive and, even though we didn't run it as a commercial venture, our passion was rewarded with many happy rubber punters."

"Our new night at The Hoist welcomes all shades of rubber. Anything from Rubber-Heavy to Rubber-Lite is catered for! We even had some guys, who had never ventured out in rubber before, saying they were made to feel very welcome. We've now branched out to Subline in Brighton, with a successful first Rubber Reunion night at the beginning of July and two more to come this year.

"We look forward to welcoming all you rubber guys on Saturday 6th August at The Hoist."

Try blagging the guest list at Savage, get really dressed up (I mean you've made an effort so they should let you in for free), go out somewhere local, say The Glory or Dalston Superstore and get there before 9pm, say yes to a drinks ticket from Ma Butcher, or even say you're with the DJ!
