Meet the MACHINE

Larry Tee's Super Electric Party Machine takes over East Bloc every Friday, causing somewhat of a ruckus in the basement club as the sexy, the cute, the colourful and the creative gather for a mash-up of colossal proportions! The club has also just released its self-titled debut album. Meet just a few of the characters that help get the party poppin'...

Larry Tee

I have never had more fun than here in London. I just released my new album, named after my Friday party at East Bloc, 'Super Electric Party Machine', which has tons of local stars like Portia Ferrari (Versace model and ES mag cover star), co-producer/DJ star AttackAttackAttack, rappers Lady Cartel and Nwando as well as Americans like Princess Superstar, Mike Q, rapper Cuntly Savage, and boy band MDPC. All in all, London lets me do everything I love doing and there is so much creative inspiration here. I am a lucky man, BITCHES BITCHES BITCHES!

AttackAttackAttack

When I first met Larry Tee we totally hit it off. He's been a massive inspiration to me on both a personal and career level, not to mention a constant source of hilarity. Together we started Super Electric Party Machine and our record label Carnage Music, which is home to a host of new London and international talents, as well as our Super Electric Party Machine album. Having co-produced the album, I have a fondness for so many of the tracks, but the next single 'Body Talk' featuring London's Portia Ferrari is my personal favourite, the video is with the CGI team as we speak and was shot by the amazing up-and-coming video genius, Ashley Joiner.

Portia

I grew up all over the world but always knew I wanted to live in London. When I first moved here I met Joseph Icaro and we were introduced to the East London scene together, meeting most of our friends at Larry's night SEPM! I spend most of my time networking as a make-up artist, hairstylist, model, dancer, a singer AND a student!

Larry and I started working on the track 'Body Talk' late last year! I'm also working on some hip-hop and R'n'B tracks with a UK rapper, so watch this space!

Michael Stephens

I spent my first few years in London working at legendary British style bible i-D Magazine, which consequently opened many doors to the eccentric East End club scene. I'm now based in Central London at a renowned department store where I manage the Graphic Design department and creative projects, but at the weekend I'm still found at SEPM, loving the fashion-forward crowd and eclectic mix of fun positive electronic dance vibes!

Joel Jay P

I'm a model/dancer and an editor for Noctis magazine. My love for the SEPM style of music started back from when I lived in the Midlands where grime, garage bassline and house originated. SEPM is renowned for its big bassy music, which keeps me dancing and buzzing all night long. My favourite track is Super Electric Party Machine ft Portia Ferrari, 'Body Talk'.

Will Bond

I grew up in north London, but when my family moved to Shrewsbury I'd sneak to Birmingham every weekend and it wasn't long before I was DJing at my favourite clubs. Now I'm lucky to spend most of my time in East London working as DJ and Label Manager at Carnage Music, the record label to Super Electric Party Machine. You'll find me at SEPM every Friday. I'm either on the door, dancing to Larry Tee's later sets or (if I'm lucky) behind the decks myself. After working on the release of the SEPM album, each track is special to me. I've remixed Portia Ferrari's 'Body Talk' and I love playing this out because it has a throbbing bouncy bassline, but I couldn't forget to mention 'Disco Me Disco' featuring Russian experimentalist artist Andrey Bartenev. I love his Russian accent on the vocals and the progressive build-ups will have your hands high in the air!

Nasty Pixie

With nine Top 20 hits and three No.1's under her belt, Pixie Lott is about to get 'Nasty' with the release of her next single. Ahead of her G-A-Y gig this weekend, QX asks her about some of the nastiest, weirdest or strangest experiences she's had...

G-A-Y

Pixie Lott is at Heaven
(Villiers Street, Charing Cross, WC2N 6NG)
on Saturday 8th March, 10.30pm-5am.

...chat-up line?

I've had people ask for my hand in marriage. I always say yes!

...present you've received?

There was this one really weird letter I had where this guy sent me a fuzzy little chick with a hat that he'd made himself. He said he was going to send me a hat every month. But then he never sent me another one again! I wonder what happened to him?

...song to hear on the dancefloor?

I would say the Proclaimers song '500 Miles' by Peter Kay really annoys me.

...time you've ever been drunk?

Well, they've never been bad experiences, really, they've always been good ones! But the first time I've ever been sick from alcohol was when I was younger and me and my friends went to a Chinese restaurant, that was very 'lenient' with serving alcohol - that's why we went there because we could get served. We were mixing alcohol and drank everything. I remember my dad coming to pick us up and I was sick all over the car park. I felt horrendous the next day.

...thing you've ever read about you in the media?

One time there was an article in the paper that I was a real diva with my rider and I only wanted red M&Ms, and I always demanded to have a globe in my dressing room and psychology books. I don't know where they got that from.

Going to McDonalds and sitting in the car park eating a McFlurry.

...job before she got famous?

I've been performing for years and got signed when I was 15, so I've never had a regular job. But in the beginning I've done two or three shows as Mika's lollipop girl where I'd dress up in pink dresses and blonde wig and jump up and down on stage for £50.

...gig?

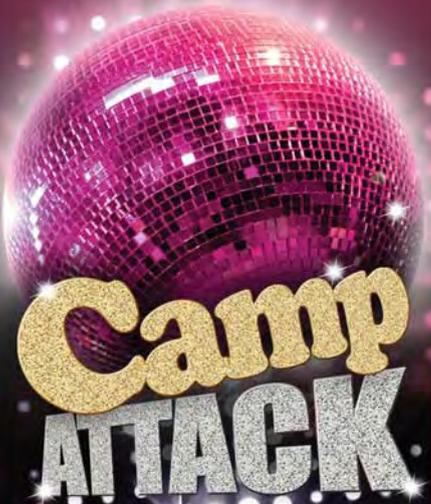

There was one time when I was first starting out and it was really late at night, and I got on stage, the sound system was really bad and the music kept going back to the start. We had to keep starting over, and then it just cut out. So I was stuck on stage with no music and had to fill the time just telling some jokes and it was really awkward. It happens!

...outfit?

When I was younger I did a lot of random shows and musical theatre and I was pretty much put in every outfit. Once I had to dress up as a chicken! Don't ask!

ERROR IN THE MARGINS?

Both people of ethnicity and LGBT citizens are ostensibly within the 'margins' of mainstream society. But does this mean a solidarity between the two groups, or a passing on of oppression through the oppressed? Patrick Cash looks into the subject.

RuPaul was asked in an interview recently if he thought, as a black man, that homophobia was more prevalent within the black community. In his answer, he said: "People who have been oppressed take on the characteristics of their oppressor, and that is unfortunate... You would think that natural allies would be black folks, gay folks, because the plight is really the same. But that's not the case because of that oppression storyline."

When Frank Ocean revealed on a Tumblr note in 2011 that he had once been in love with a man, it was heralded by the global media as a brave, pioneering action. Here was a representative not only of the musical genre R'n'B/rap, atypically associated with a proud, straight masculinity, but also of the black community declaring his deeply felt emotional 'transgression' of sexuality.

But it was only so brave and pioneering because the black community is traditionally perceived to be less accepting of homosexuality than most aspects of Western society in general. Perhaps these perceptions are wrong. But the flippant use of homosexual-based slurs in raps, and statistical facts such as that 70% of Californian black families supported the same-sex marriage ban, appear to back up the idea in America.

Ben Macklemore

However, when I spoke to London-based artist Jacob V Joyce recently about how the black community in the UK treats race, he said: "Black culture is a huge, huge thing. The black community in London from what I can see doesn't have that much more homophobia than the white community... In my own experience I've experienced lots of homophobia from white people and black people, but I think you might just hear it a bit louder from a community that doesn't have much of a voice in other places."

What really ignited the race-sexuality debate in recent weeks was the Macklemore 'Same Love' furore, sweeping up at the Grammys. Straight, white rapper Ben Haggerty's ode to marriage equality for LGBT citizens has come under fire for lines such as "if I was gay, I would think hip-hop hates me". These soundbites are said to perpetuate myths of homophobia in black music genres and, by extension, the wider black community, with many of the most outspoken critics stemming from voices of the black LGBT community.

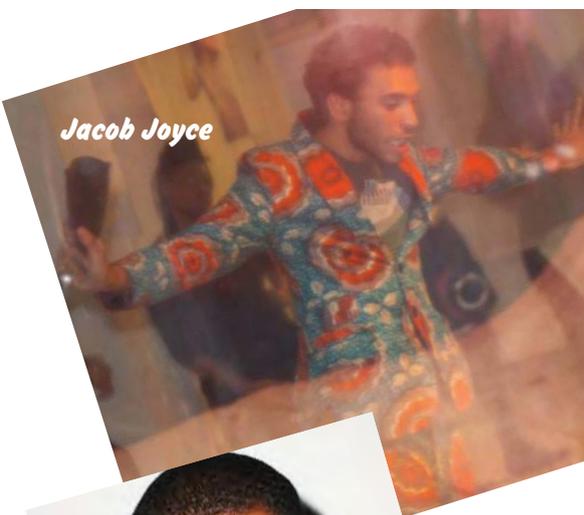

Joyce thinks it's a deeper, and more systemic, problem behind the mistrust directed towards Macklemore.

"It's annoying in 2014 to see there are so many amazing black rappers like LEIF, Cakes Da Killa, Mykki Blanco, Angel Haze, talking about their struggle of being black and gay/queer and it not really getting that much media attention. But then a middle class white person comes along and says, "Hey, it's okay to be gay' and he wins all the awards. It reminds me too much of Elvis when there were all these oppressed black people literally singing songs about oppression and then he took those songs and sung them in a cheerful way and he's King of Pop."

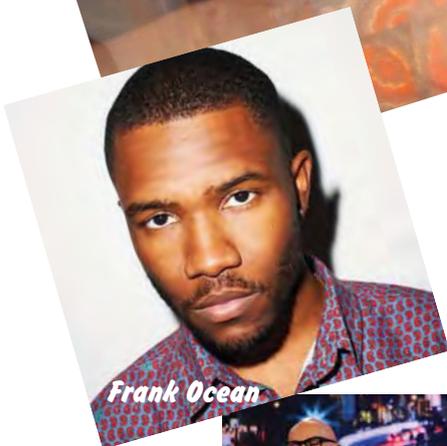

One of the most powerful and important speeches about oppression in our era went viral across the internet recently, courtesy of Irish drag queen Panti Bliss. She spoke of checking herself for her sexuality, 'what gives the gay away', at road crossings. "That feels oppressive," she says. Imply this neuroses of insecurity into a marginalised community and it takes a lot of innate strength to not try for an easy ego boost by superficially strengthening the ego against others, as RuPaul himself goes on to say in his interview.

Whether you are oppressed by way of your race or your sexuality, or even both, it will take a collective strengthening of resolve to shrug off the secondhand characteristics of oppression.

NOT THE APPS, BUT THE APPETITE

By Patrick Cash

Recently there seems to be an increasing trend to blame apps like Grindr for various problems that afflict the gay scene. But are we just trying to blind ourselves to where these problems truly originate?

Some time ago I was asked to read through a submitted article to QX and give a second opinion as to its publication. It was by a man in his thirties outlining how drugs, chill-outs and sex parties slowly took over his life until he lost his job and contracted HIV. The article found its eventual culmination in a line stating: "Now I'd realised the reason for everything that was going wrong in my life: Manhunt."

It seemed that the writer had managed to identify demons in his own person, but then immediately sought another outlet on which to lay the blame. Let's be clear, here: in my opinion Manhunt had very little to do with the reason why this man's life went off the rails. Manhunt was a facilitator, a go-between, a means to an end, but it could not singularly be held accountable as a reason why.

Recently I've noticed a similar trend to at least partially lay the blame upon apps like Grindr for the current chemsex problems afflicting some sections of the gay London community. Jon Snow asked the DJ Fat Tony on Channel 4 news whether crystal meth could be accessed through an app, and Tony replies with his anecdote that he was offered chems 147 times over 3 days on Grindr. Whether intentionally or not, this contextually gives an impression that Grindr may be a source of the problem.

But of course, Grindr and its brother apps are simply bridges. The quick communication they offer may make building a chemsex party or getting access to drugs easier, but the apps are only the sums of their users. It is the same pattern of thinking as attributing drug culture solely to clubs in Vauxhall. From those who stand external to that scene you may understand how the misguided impression has arisen, but when it stems from the beating hearts caught up in the centre of the centrifuge, it seems deliberate tunnel vision.

There is a dragon out there purring in some areas of the gay scene. Many of us dance with it at the weekends: it smarts in the sting of mephedrone, in the shot of G, coils in crystal meth and shoots from slamming needles. But if you dance with the dragon for too long, you are going to get burnt. And the dragon is not Vauxhall, the dragon is not the clubs, it's not the apps, it's not even just the drugs. It's an appetite that lives and feeds inside.

Where does the appetite come from? We as gay men are renowned for being obsessed with our outside appearance, from the clothes we wear or our perfect hair to the phenomenal success of airbrushed photos. Perhaps we lay such importance on the outside veneer that we present to the world, because we're still not completely happy with what's inside.

Sexual Health expert and drugs counsellor David Stuart of 56 Dean Street has some very interesting theories on this subject to do with us as gay men's relationship with sex, shame and intimacy. These issues can be resolved successfully, but it'll involve an intricate communication of truth and addressing what's going on inside. The apps are simply sometimes dark mirrors reflecting at a slant what's going on within areas of the gay community.

Of course, the message of safe sex, of being able to tackle problematic drug use through clinics like CODE, can never be said enough and perhaps this could be incorporated at a wider level into facilitators. But, as a young writer we have here at QX named Anthony Gilét recently said, the time to actually listen to these messages will only come when you yourself feel ready to stop.

Changing attitudes in Poland

Poland doesn't have the best history at dealing with homosexuality. Well, it is a deeply Catholic country. So, filmmaker

Malgorzata Szumowska decided to take on both sexuality and religion in her movie In The Name Of, which became a surprise box office hit back home. QX's Jack Leger met up with her in London...

I can't recall seeing a Polish film address gay issues, and now we have two in one year: In The Name Of and Floating Skyscrapers...

Few filmmakers are willing to deal with these issues. Tomasz Wasilewski, who made Floating Skyscrapers, and I are friends, so I found it interesting that he was brave enough to make that film. I used to be a Catholic, and it stayed in my mind when I quit the church. I'd met so many priests that I had to say something. I knew that this would be the first film in my country about a homosexual priest, so I wanted to make a movie that never judged him. People in Poland are still homophobic and judgmental, especially outside the big cities.

Is this why you set the story in a small village?

Yes. If I put it in a big city it would be a completely different thing. Poland is not a multi-cultural country; it's a closed society, so it's changing far too slowly. In the big city we are more open, and there is no divide between gay and straight people. But people in the provinces are afraid to even talk about these issues. And the church treats homosexuality as a sickness, so the priest is caught in the middle. It's like a classic tragedy in that sense.

Are things changing?

Yes, but far too slowly. People clearly have a desire for this kind of movie, and some think my film isn't radical enough! But it's important to have more of these subjects addressed in movies. Although after making films on the history of prostitution and a homosexual priest, I think my next movie will be a little less intense.

In The Name Of is available on Peccadillo DVD/VOD.

"The church treats homosexuality as a sickness."

Loving the slow Italo remix by Ilya Santana.

4. 'Nelue'

- John & Mary

Nelue delivers a Balearic Cosmic uber cool tune.

5. Midnight Riot vol.6

- Various Artists

You could play a cool disco house 2 hour long DJ set using only this compilation.

6. 'Zsa Zsa'

- Blamma Blamma

The Psychemagik remix of this is just a slow dancefloor stomper.

7. 'The Feeling'

- Julian Sanza feat.

Future Feelings

Cool nu-disco spacey track.

8. 'Strobin'

- Fingerman

Dancefloor mover by Mr Gregg Holmes.

9. 'Running to Your Love'

- Ilya Santana

The Sportloto remix is such an amazing work.

10. 'Keep on Running'

- D Pulse

Again, this Russian guy delivers a super cool disco tune.

Tell us in one tasty sentence who DJ Rayko is...

Rayko is a crazy Spanish guy who loves to play and produce disco vibes.

What have been your best club career moments so far?

To name a few, I always remember nights like the one I spent playing in Cairo in a boat in the Nile river, or a warehouse in LA, or in Womb club in Tokyo...

You're playing at Dalston Superstore's new night, "Battered Sausage". Tell us about your chorizo and what makes Spanish disco so sexy... what do you bring to the sound?

Well, I guess it's all about sunshine... I always loved to listen to positive and joyful music, so I try to import that feelings to my DJ sets.

DJ Rayko will be playing at 'Battered Sausage' at the Dalston Superstore, 117 Kingsland Road, E8 2PB, on Saturday 8th March, 9pm-3am. Free before 10pm, £5 after.

IT'S BACK! WIN £1,000 G-A-Y PORN IDOL

Part 1: Thursday 13th March

Judges Tanya Hyde, Michael Mitchell and Baga Chipz will sit with their backs to the audience so they can't see the contestants, but go by audience reaction to decide whether to turn. Judges then mentor the contestant they turn for, or the contestant chooses their judge if more than one turns. The judges will then have 2 days to choreograph a two-minute strip, choosing their music, outfit and everything that is needed to help the contestant win £1,000.

Part 2: Saturday 15th March

£1,000 to be won! Which judge's contestant will win it?

WOW! THAT WAS literally the first word that fell out of our mouths as we left behind the cold of Soho Square and entered a much hotter atmosphere in The Edge; and we ain't just talking central heating. The clientele that had turned out to help owner

Andy and Chad and the crew of cute bar staff were tastier than birthday cake icing. And if the pretty patrons and barmen weren't enough to have us salivating (they totally were), there were even topless totty strolling around and posing for photos; what a stressful life that must be... Chad then took place on the podium, sandwiched between a handful of hunks - aww, poor you - and was presented with a cake bursting with fireworks. To be fair it's not exactly the spark we were hoping for that night. But that didn't stop us from enjoying the commercial pop they had pumping until the early hours of Sunday. Cheers to many more birthdays (and many more nights husband-cruising at The Edge).

AFTER A HARD DAY of lopping big trees into little logs, a lumberjack needs to kick back, pop open a brewski and get down... to XXL to the real business of turning twigs into big branches!

Mark Ames and crew had the whole gosh dang lumber camp dancin round the maypole as resident DJs Christian M, Joe Egg, Alex and Stu Stiles shaved the bark off the old oak and shook our acorns loose. We heaved and hoed amongst the bristly beards and checked shirts exposing more than a few leather harnesses clearly worn for health and safety purposes when scaling those sequoias. Ambient tunes soothed a week-weary crowd leading to harder bass as the night got darker and the men got burlier. Bears, beers, brawn and bass brewing a whole lotta hot trouble.

Bears crawled outta hibernation and followed a trail of packed lunches from Blackfriars across the dance floor to the chill out room manned by the humpiest of barmen, Andrew, a genuine heartbreaker serving suds with a wicked wink and a dirty grin.

Lubber lads, plaid players and chubby choppers all put down their axes and picked up – each other.

Big bears also proved they have big hearts as Mark Ames put out the call for volunteers to assist a benefit for Kaleidoscope, a charity dedicated to helping gays afflicted by human rights abuses in Africa. "It's just me and anyone else trying to make a difference and support those affected by this ignorance and persecution. I hope other venues join in, too."

He's ringing that triangle fellas. So climb down off your trees and get busy!

POPCORN: CARNIVAL
03/03/14
Heaven, under the

CARNIVAL IN HEAVEN! Can you think of a more perfect trip? Popcorn at Heaven lived up to its name as Selby, Ben and over 20 go-go boys, day-glo dancers, samba queens, batteria drummers and capoeira fighters threw the party of the year so far with the event they were born to lead—Carnival, the beautiful bacchanalian Brazilian gift – and smacked us right on the lips with a dazzling display of Latin funk, twerkin’ RnB and an absolute somersault of sound and colour that swept the ‘pipoca’ off their feet with 4 explosive shows that shook the conga line shimmying out the club up Charing Cross

Road all the way to Rio, baby!
Resident DJ Paulo Moreno, guest DJs Ale Amaral and Ariel captained the main stage beneath a streaming psychedelic vortex as DMS, Little Rob and Zach Burns took no prisoners in their niche camps and marched us off in an army of lovers; strangers only until the first kiss on this sexiest day of the year.

“I want to bring a little bit of Carnival in Rio with me here tonight,” Brazilian import DJ Amaral smiled humbly, his gorgeous cheeky grin knowing he has done way more than that tonight.

Highlights included a UV mash-up with Selby and the Heaven dancers including newcomer, Chris Groom, his first day on the job as a Popcorn popper.

“The absolute time of my life!” he gushed, the understatement of the week as balloons and confetti cascaded all around us. Welcome to Heaven!

TIN TIN

Club Tin Tin prides itself on delivering a funk-up crowd gyrating to some seriously sexy beats. This Friday, the club returns taking over the 5th floor of Rise on Leicester Square, featuring stunning views across London, a kickin' sound system and a new weekly slot. Here's what some of the hosts had to say about it... and themselves...

1: Kingsley

Tell us about you...

Kingsley, 29, Cancerian, who likes a long walk along the beach and Care Bears. Full time hair stylist and part time DJ/host. I've been working on the scene now for 10 years. What turns me on? Music. I love me some good disco, soul and Janet Jackson!

What will your look be on the night?

I seem to be dressing more and more like Lisa Stansfield on her first album cover, so I'm guessing something loosely tailored and acid washed with a few crucifixes!

Tell us something scandalous about one of your co-hosts...

Paul can drop and stitch a weave like a motherfucker. He can also twerk upside down!

What's the best chat-up line someone's ever given you?

I can tell you the worst was some leech of a creep coming up to me and going, "Hey, nice height". Seriously he was like a total Igor with weak fashion sense and thirsty lines!

2: Paul Marcus

Who are you, what do you do and what turns you on?

I'm a club promoter and host. And hairy hunks with tats!

Why are Friday nights a good idea?

Good way to kickstart the weekend.

What are you looking forward to at the new venue?

To smash the dance floor of course! LOL

3: Smiley Vyrus

Tell us about yourself...

Smiley Vyrus is that girl who forgot her dress and wears a cheap, fabulous, ratty wig.

Describe a night at Club Tin Tin.

Well, obviously it's the most fabulous night in all the land!

Have you picked out an outfit?

No outfit yet but, slutty heroin chic... Really slutty.

4: Ollywood

Tell us about you...

I'm a 14 year old emo girl trapped in the tattooed body of a 25 year old man.

Have you picked out an outfit for the night?

Well unfortunately, my Dior Couture is at the dry cleaners, so I guess i'll have to wear my usual vest and cap. :)

Tell us something scandalous about one of your co-hosts at the club...

Jonny Yihi - too gay to function. Smiley Virus - made out with a hot dog. Kingsley - fugly slut.

5: Johnny Yihi

Tell us who you are, what you do, what turns you on...

Kind, funny, friendly. Love dancing, hip-hop, DJing, fashion, parties and all of them to share with GOOD friends.

Tin Tin has been going from strength-to-strength. What have been some of your favourite moments at the club?

For me, I have met really good people there, who you can trust, and all of them in the London nightlife where, in my opinion, it's really hard to find it.

Why is the move to a Friday night a good idea?

Weekends always involve more people, and this time it's moving to Soho area, one of the most popular places in London, so I'm sure it's gonna be amazing. I can't wait to be in there, seriously.

Club Tin Tin is weekly at Rise (1 Leicester Square, WC2H 7NA) from Friday 7th March, 10pm-3am.

"After one bite, you're hooked. My advice, it's best served hot!"

It's getting EPIC

Epic is the new event that is hitting town this weekend to bring a slice of New York clubbing to London. QX speaks to promoter Michael Theriault and host Johanna Londinium to find out more. And introducing DJ Serving Ovahnness...

Michael Theriault is a new name on the London scene. What's his clubland experience back in NYC?

JOHANNA: Michael's NYC club experience comes from living and breathing the 'Party Monster' movie for real. An original NYC club kid, when Michael decided to start throwing his own parties he wanted to re-create that colourful, hedonistic, no holds barred environment where people from all walks of life and sexual persuasions could show up and express themselves however they wanted, then lose themselves on the dance floor to the beats of old school NYC house music. He's most known for his Sunday evening tea dance 'The Underground'.

Epic is all about bringing a taste of New York's gay club scene to London. What does the New York club scene taste like?

MICHAEL: It's like a really good dessert. Nice and rich with different layers of taste that make every bite of this sexy rollercoaster of an adventure. After one bite, you're hooked. My advice, it's best served hot!

Who is involved in this event?

JOHANNA: Flying in from NYC we have DJs Serving Ovahnness and Razor & Guido. Club hostess Erica Gabriel will be there to shake things up. From London DJ Dmitry Strigun is providing the tunes. I will be hosting along with La Pequena, Taylor Scott, Le Menor and HRH Minty. Shaun Capewell will be looking after his super sexy team of performers and gogos.

The event is at Pulse, which is a big space and famous for XXL. How will you transform it for Epic?

MICHAEL: You are not lying! When I saw the space for the first time I was like, "Oh shit!!" But I'm not one to just throw a DJ behind a set of turntables and call it a party. You'll have to come a see what we do at Epic. It will be good fun.

Serving Ovahnness

Give us the overview of the Ovahnness...

I am a DJ and Producer born and raised in New York City. I consider myself a messenger of house music and I love being able to share my sound and message through music. London has been one of the cities I have dreamed of playing for years and I can't even begin to share how excited I am to finally be coming to you.

Describe your sound to us London boys?

My sounds is percussive house blended with vocals. Whether progressive, deep, or classic, I love to give a repertoire of music that is past, present, and future. That may include old school house, disco, funk, R&B and remakes of classics all packaged in my "signature" way.

Ok, so the name. It's like soooo NYC. How did it come about?

My name was actually given to me by one of my closest friends. He would always say, when you play music you always "serve us ovahnness". I started out using DJ Brian D, that name didn't go too well with my friends and everyone started telling me "No your name is DJ Serving Ovahnness". The rest is history. The name has less to do with me but more to do with the music. I'm just Brian and I'm here to serve my crowd with a great time.

What have been your best gigs to date?

Getting to headline in Tel-Aviv for FFF was one of my biggest gigs to date. The crowd was unbelievable, and it felt amazing to be able to go to the other side of the world and have a crowd that knew the music, the vocals, and gave so much life to the dancefloor. The other was for Black Party weekend in NYC when I did a party at the Underground with Junior Vasquez. I opened that night for him, and when Junior arrived after listening to my set, he invited me to spin alongside him for the rest of the evening. That night I spun with my idol.

How do you think London will take to a NYC sound?

I think London will take on the NYC sound very well, because the music scene in London has always had a major presence in the underground house music scene. I think London will recognize a lot of the influences that have come into NYC house and vice versa.

Epic is at Pulse (No 1 Invicta Plaza, Southbank, SE1 9UF) on Friday 7th March, 11pm-late.

How to win MR EAGLE

...and walk away with £1,000!

Are you more butch than bitch? Get ready to ditch the skimpy Abercrombie & Fitch shaved look, bust out the beard and maybe even sling a harness on as it is almost time for Mr Eagle 2014. If you think you've got what it takes to ruffle a few feathers and impress a crowd of eager men and scene judges, then you could win a whopping £1,000 and be the lust of all men for the coming year. Roy Inc presents his top seven tips for winning the coveted title and a generous stash of cash... AND contestants get a chance to represent Eagle London at International Mister Leather (May) or International Mister Rubber (November) in Chicago! Not bad at all.

Roy photographed by Lee 4th Child

1 Choose your outfit well, think what makes you feel confident

Cub, rubber pig, sugar daddy, leather top, sport boy, business city lad in a tight suit? Bulging crotch, porn star in the making or just landed in London and whoring for your green card?

2 Always have good eye contact with the host on stage

Even though you might not have any idea what the fuck he's talking about just nod and smile.

3 Pick the perfect prop

The Eagle audience are a great crowd, so be a people pleaser and have a little trick up your sleeve; like wearing a jock strap if you're willing to show!

4 No comprende?

If English isn't your first language bring along a hot interpreter, who will do all your "oral" translation for you.

5 Show off your best ass-ets

A way to convince the judges you should be crowned Mr Eagle is to drop something, turn around and pick it up, bum up in the air. A tight ass always brings in the points.

6 Bring your own clap-o-meter

Another way for points stealing is to bring your own crowd of mates ready to cheer you on towards getting that cash cow...

7 Variety is the spice of life

All are welcome to step on stage at The Eagle, including all ages! (Well, you must be over 18, of course. It's Mr Eagle, not a Butlins Holiday Camp talent search contest!) But remember... bring your 'A' Game!

HOW TO ENTER

Send an email to mreagle@eaglelondon.com with your name, telephone number, a recent photo and a short sentence or two as to why YOU should be Mr Eagle 2014!

BAR OF THE WEEK

THE QUEBEC

12 Old Quebec Street, W1H 7AF

City of Quebec is one of the most lauded gay pubs in central London, bringing a diverse range of men in through its doors near to the famous Marble Arch. With exceptionally friendly service and a streamlined running to the whole shindig, you could do worse than a swift one in the Quebec! And with stunning cabaret artistes laying on the entertainment at the weekends you'd be advised to make the night of it there if you haven't already. This Sunday 9th March is the turn of Miss Jason to get your mouths a-laughing and your feet a-gidding.

MANBAR

79 Charing Cross Road, Soho, WC2H 0NE

Manbar boasts one of the most eclectic range of offerings for nights out over the scene with its clubbier, sexy late nights that go on until 3am not detracting from the quality of its earlier bar events too. On a Sunday you'll find their highly enjoyable London gay film club Genre which screens different films each week, and this Sunday 9th March being the turn of the much acclaimed 'Behind the Candelabra', starring Michael Douglas and Matt Damon. Monday 10th is the free gay sexual health clinic service where the lovely people from 56 Dean Street will be on the first floor offering you confidential advice and testing. And Tuesday 11th is of course their phenomenally successful Spotlight talent contest where the search continues, courtesy of main man Duncan Day, for the best talent that Soho and London have to offer!

Duncan Day

KU SOHO

25 Frith Street, Soho, WC2H 7BA

Ku Bar in Soho has had an awesome makeover! And it's gone gold, golder than you can possibly imagine, so you'd better get yourself there to see it for yourself in the flesh, sparkling like Ali Baba's cave meets Tutenkhamen's palace with, of course, a lavish dash of all-round contemporary Ku sexiness. It's all down to master interior designer to the stars Leopold Lawrence (the mastermind behind the gorgeous mothership Ku at Lisle Street, off Leicester Square), who has opened up the first floor with chandeliers and golden furniture to make it the perfect space to relax and watch Old Compton Street go by. Plus, of course there is the usual bevy of gorgeous Ku boys behind the bar, so you won't know whether to keep your eyes on them or the décor!

HALFWAY 2 HEAVEN

7 Duncannon Street, Charing Cross, WC2N 4JF

Halfway is one of the most popular destinations in all of gay London for some top-notch cabaret entertainment at the weekends and with a schedule like this one we're not at all surprised! Friday 7th March sees 'Friday Night Live!', hosted by one of the finest acerbic wits of the scene Miss Myra Dubois, and featuring special guest Martha D'Arthur. Saturday 8th sees Myra back again from 4pm, filling in for Rose Garden whilst she's in Australia, and Saturday night is the sexy 'Bears Downstairs' hosted by Justin Swift. And why not finish off the weekend on Sunday 9th with Mrs Moore from 8pm?!

RUPERT STREET

50 Rupert Street, Soho, W1D 6DR

Rupert Street is that sexy spot of Soho that gives you a bit of dancefloor bang for your party buck, with DJs all over the big weekend days and one on Thursday too! This Thursday 6th March, warm up for the weekend with the sounds of Rich B from 9pm, then hot stuff Brent Nicholls takes over on Friday 7th from 9pm again and on Saturday reach the apex of your weekend with the spinning fingers of Sharon O Love taking you higher (from 9pm)! Plus happy hour is every day from 12-8pm with bottles of house champagne at £19 and 2-4-£10 cocktails.

of their Bedsits and clampered down to Kazbar for a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see Best Song BAFTA gong winner Katherine Ellis share the stage with Bedsit Boys DJs Robb White and Eduardo Herrera.

Singer/writer/mama/diva

Katherine's soul-searing vocals,

uptempo RnB funk and catchy phrasing made for a perfect marriage with White and Herrera's nu-disco deep house grooves.

She laid out all her hits to the lucky ones who got in and the swarming masses outside. Highlights of the show included an impromptu accapella duet between Ms. Katherine and Kazbar's Mr. Maritza with Katherine calling out to him up in the mezzanine and he, arms out-stretched over the railing, responding note for note a la West Side Story's Tony and Maria.

The audience lapped it up like cats n cream and shouted the house down for more until Ms. Ellis closed the show with everyone's favourite Freemasons remix of 'Tears'. "She's just fabuluus!" preened Brazilian duo ElectroMagnetico's Christian Peterson and Alessandre Dias who had just arrived to see the show and were queuing in the cluster of fans trying to get backstage.

Exhausted but delighted, Katherine had no plans for slowing down just yet. "I spent 2013 touring, so now I'm spending 2014 recording." She's written 5 of the 6 tracks she's recorded on the forthcoming Bimbo Jones album 'Go Naked' due for digital download in March. Then touring behind that. We can't wait!

...AND THE OSCAR GOES TO...

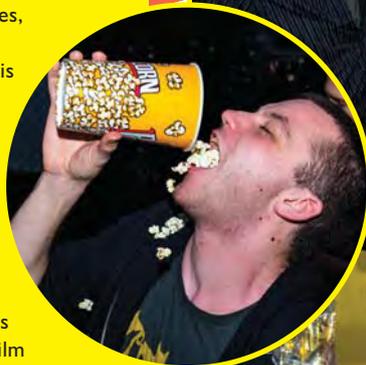

Manbar! GENRE, Manbar's feature film and shorts night rocketed to stardom with the launch of its new Sunday night cinema, GENRE and the Gay London Film Club, on Oscar night, of course! Hosted by incomparable pair Chrissy Darling and Tom Whelehan, Hollywood went Hollyweird as they presented a jam-packed pre-show of off-the-wall trivia contests, songs, prizes, surprises and the feature film, the Oscar-winning Gravity. Manbar's main man, Chris Amos has branched out to create an exciting new night that will turn any movie into a fun-filled event.

Shown on a main floor silver screen and big screen TVs upstairs in your own cosy leather sofas, feature films are just a part of a more important offering: Gay London Film Club. "GLFC will showcase short films by gay independent filmmakers and provide a forum for filmmakers and film lovers to meet and network," Amos said proudly peering out at the packed house of film goers of all genders and "genres".

Chrissy and Tom kept the laughs going and the prizes flowing as audience members were treated to a barrage of jokes, bits and soundtrack songs by powerhouse vocalist, Justine Mead before, during and after the show. If that weren't enough, Amos, Mr. Manbar himself, generously handed out free year-long GENRE memberships to lucky winners, Toby Cisneros and Chris Musangi.

"Next week is Behind The Candelabra. It's going to be a great time!—and FREE Popcorn too!" See you at the movies!

WORDS BY ANTHONY GILÉT

IT HAD BEEN A

long week, and after a heavy Friday, there were few things that could get us out again on the Saturday; but a relaxing hair of the dog at Ku Bar was one of them. We ventured to the newly renovated venue on Frith Street for a quiet drink. With an opulent and luxurious new interior - just in time for awards season - it was clear to see that Ku had the decorators hard at work while they were closed. Giant chandeliers dangled like the earrings of Brixton bitches and the gold decor set the perfect mood for some cocktails and cocktalk.

Downstairs, something was different. We later found out that the seats were lined with happy lesbian couples because it has been turned into new venue, She. And it wasn't long before our "quiet drink" turned into Tequila shots and beer goggles. Standard. We look forward to reclining here on cold nights to come.

Honey, what a boo-boo...

FROM RED-FACED wardrobe malfunctions to awkward faux pas, it's not always plain sailing for the queens of our stage out there in cabaret-land. But it's all just in a night's work. Ordinarily you just hear about how fabulous a show was, with a gush here and a gush there, but this week Jason Reid finds out from six cabaret stars what's the most embarrassing situation they've ever found themselves in while performing...

Mitzi Macintosh

During a pratfall in a show I put my hand down before my bum hit the floor, only to realise five minutes later that my wrist was more than a little sprained. I thought it would save time and might get me rushed through by a "friendly" nurse if I stayed in drag. I sat in the A&E of one of Sydney's busiest hospitals at 2am with aggressive drunks all around me, a gang shooting to my right, a disgusted mother with a sick three year old opposite, and me looking like a gay clown with no male nurses to help. The embarrassment was drawn out until 9am when the first theatre became available and they could reset my wrist and insert two metal pins.

Tiffany Wells

Back in the day I was performing at a pub in the East End of London, and in the middle of singing

'New York, New York' I went to kick my leg up (in a very dainty way, of course); unfortunately the back of my stiletto got stuck in the back of my blue sequin dress. It took me five looooooong minutes to prize it free, so I had to stand there on one foot singing for the duration. As they say: "The show must go on."

Lady La Rue

In the early days of my cabaret career I was still pretty 'green' and during one show I had a girl from the audience, probably early thirties, up on stage who I'd been bantering with throughout. The rest of the audience and her friends were lapping it up. Anyway, I glanced down to the top of her dress and noticed a piece of loo paper hanging out of the top of her bra.

"Look at this girls!" I exclaimed, "She's been padding her tits out, just like me!"

It was at this point that the dear girl whispered discretely in my ear to tell me she'd recently had a double mastectomy. To say I was mortified was putting it mildly. Fortunately, she was most gracious about the whole thing and realised my innocent mistake, laughing it off. I learned more that night than I have in any other.

Meth

During a particularly energetic rendition of my 'Bat Out of Hell' spot, on All Hallows' Eve no less, my usual flailing around became somewhat more frantic after I took a slip in a puddle - caused by a leaky smoke machine (rumour has it someone had urinated in the machine leading to a series of unfortunate malfunctions). To add insult to injury, Miss Cairo and Bourgeoisie were in the audience, and, of course, began to howl with laughter. Once I'd recovered and finished the number I remedied the situation by admitting my failings and reminding everyone watching that should news get out I would utterly destroy them by tearing their souls out through their mouths and making a soup from the tears of their grieving loved ones. The same goes for anyone reading this.

La Voix

Not that long ago, I was booked to do a surprise show singing at a gay wedding at the Royal Academy of Arts. I pulled up in full drag, on a rickshaw that was blaring techno music, leaped out, burst into the wedding and shouted "Hello darlings" only to be met with looks of complete horror and silence. The rickshaw driver had mistakenly dropped me at the Royal SOCIETY of Arts - a completely different venue - which happened to have a straight wedding reception in full swing. I made a swift and cringey exit, screaming "Stoooooop" down the street to the rickshaw driver. The poor bride will surely never forget her big day now.

Jeff Kristian

As part of my big finale, in a show back in the early 80s, I had to come down a small staircase through the live band to a narrow stage. However, on one occasion an over-zealous roadie was a little too heavy on the smoke machine. I completely missed the top step, in a tight costume, and plummeted, knocking the mic stand into the audience. Costume and lip split. Everyone laughed, no bastard helped!

LET'S GET THE minor criticisms out of the way from this genuinely good production first: the script is sometimes a little hackneyed, the dialogue slightly clichéd and I did find myself asking why set a play leading up to the 1969 Stonewall riots in a bar around the corner from the Stonewall Bar, and not in the Stonewall Bar itself? But these niggling details aside, what you do have before you here is a thoroughly involving story and, I might go so far as to say, some of the most fantastic acting to be witnessed the Vauxhall side of the West End. Michael Edwards as 'Ruby', the dishonourably discharged Vietnam soldier who becomes an alcoholic drag queen in the lower East Side of New York, lights up the stage with his charisma and cadence of presence. The other disparate characters who populate this dimly lit mafiarun bar are equally brought to life by a talented, lively cast who are highly enjoyable to watch spark and pinball off one another. Perhaps in lesser hands these characters might have come across as two-dimensional. It's hardly a strike for feminism that the one female character has 'always dreamed of working in the hat department of Macy's'. However, Nigel Barber as the angry bar owner in league with the mob, James El-Sharawy as the vulnerable teenage rentboy trying to play with the big boys, Stephanie Willson as the single mother looking after the gays, Rhys Jennings as the cop who falls for her and Oliver Lynes as the Wall Street trader caught between Ruby and his high-pressured job, were all hard to fault. At times you forget that you are watching people playing out a story, which is surely what the best of theatre is about.

IN THE WORKS

Hot rising-star Brit Jack O'Connell (300: Rise Of An Empire) will star in a film about the founding of MI6 • And rumour has it that hot young Irish actor Jack Reynor (soon in Transformers 4) has landed a key role in Star Wars Episode VII.

FILM OF THE WEEK

THE GRAND BUDAPEST HOTEL (15)
Wes Anderson movies are always fun (see Moonrise Kingdom), but this raucous European adventure is in another league: a hilarious romp that manages to get under the skin as well. Ralph Fiennes gives his best-ever performance as a fiercely efficient concierge (who knew he was so good at comedy?), and costars include Tilda Swinton, Jude Law, Saoirse Ronan and villainous duo Adrien Brody and Willem Dafoe. Don't miss it.

DVD OF THE WEEK

COMING OUT (15)
Set in Montreal, this series of 12 short episodes follows four gay men through various highs and lows. It's soapy and a bit serious, as it deals with big issues like Aids, drugs, homophobia and closeted married men. But the men are sexy, and star Mathieu Blanchard (who also created the show) is very watchable. If they make a second series, some Looking-style earthy humour wouldn't go amiss. (TLA)

GLADIATOR PORN

300: RISE OF AN EMPIRE wasn't screened in time to review, but do we care whether it's any good? Trailers are a riot of near-naked men in tiny skirts battling in the sea. Rise indeed! Think of it as a prequel to Stranger By The Lake.

THRILLS & LAUGHS

Liam Hemsworth's main job in corny techno-thriller PARANOIA is to take his shirt off every 10 minutes. We're not complaining. Gary Oldman and Harrison Ford provide gravitas. • Meanwhile, action-comedy RIDE ALONG is merely a vehicle for Kevin Hart's fast-talking banter. Only occasionally funny.

Ma Butcher

This weekend we get all busy down at the George & Dragon (2 Hackney Road, E2 7NS), where, as per usual, every first Thursday of the month I invite a special guest to join me for a DJ session. This month it's the turn of Ma Butcher's 'Personal Services'. Ma Butcher is a local legend with a pig nose and part of the Gay Bingo troupe. Anyway, she'll be all dressed up and ready to go on Thursday 6th March from 8pm-12am.

There's always something going on up at the Dalston Superstore (117 Kingsland High Street, E8 2PB), this weekend it's the turn of Battered Sausage... With Rayko! Flying in from Madrid, Rayko is known for his disco edits and Rare Wiri Records label. Joining the lineup are Severino, Dave Kendrick and Nic Fisher on Saturday 8th.

Rayko

Up at East Bloc (217 City Road, EC1V 1JN), Dish returns on Saturday 8th for further helpings of dance madness.

Lose yourselves in the sounds of Tom Stephan, Borja Pena,

Ollywood, Ray Noir, Cathal and Q Boy. Hang out with hosts La Pequena and Alexander Han, watch gogo dancers Tomino and Benoit and have a night to remember!

Tom Stephan

Destination club complex Egg (200 York Way, N7 9AX) up at Kings Cross Way presents Night Train on Saturday 8th. Joining a stellar DJ line up is Hannah Holland and Jim Warboy, with special guests Finnebassen from Norway and Filterheadz headlining. There's so many rooms here you'll be spoilt for choice!

The month of March reveals some exciting developments... From Friday 14th to the 2nd May, Caligula returns for an 8 week 'Limited Edition' residency at Casa Negra (54 - 56 Great Eastern Street, EC2A 3QR). Here's the twist - a pop up dining experience from 8 till 10pm, The Feast means a light bite before you go and dance it off in the Playroom, 10 till 4am.

ALL THE SWINGINGS & SINGINGS OF YOUTUBE AND BEYOND

HAERTS - 'HEMIPLEGIA'

HEMIPLEGIA OPENS with an oscillating, orange-golden synth line that swings and eddies as Nini Fabi's pure cut-glass vocals croon over the top: 'Slow, slow, slow / Wade through water...' An atmospheric start to a track that instigates the exciting tingle of anticipation, and sure enough when the drums kick in, the listener is swept along with the build. 'I cannot fight the sleep is droning / Into the motion, into the night / Is it the glow that keeps you moving / Hemiplegia holds you tight.'

Hemiplegia, for all those like me who didn't previously know, is a paralysis of the arm, leg and trunk on the same side of the body, which can induce difficulty with gait and balance. As this epic, layered music cleverly coasts and cruises through the ear, one begins to understand an instance of what Fabi sings. 'Gold for gold, burns our ocean,' she purrs, before she reaches the epic crescendo where she cries: 'now you can't move up with your eyes down.' For me, this indicates how the world around them, as HAERTS see it, is in a stranglehold of money, forgetting their emotional truth in a hemiplegia of purchase homogeny.

HAERTS were formed in Brooklyn, New York, but boast members hailing from Germany and the UK as well as the US. As they say on their website 'there is something decidedly mystical about HAERTS' story and it's reflected in their sound.' This is not a mysticism that is wreathed in esoteric opaqueness though, but rather a warm, inviting mystique that coils and embraces. They released their first EP 'Hemiplegia' last year and, although there are no current plans to visit the UK, we can but hope it will happen soon!

Do you have an emotional or health worry?
Contact Dr Alex via email: letters@qxmagazine.com

DR ALEX, GP

Hi Dr Alex,
I've got married and we're very happy, but my husband is older than me. We enjoy sex together but he did have a heart attack a few years ago before we met; I worry now that sex may not be such a good idea. He takes pills and also with me likes to take Viagra. I tell him to be careful but he says not to talk about it and that I shouldn't worry. Can you help me?
JJ, Waterloo

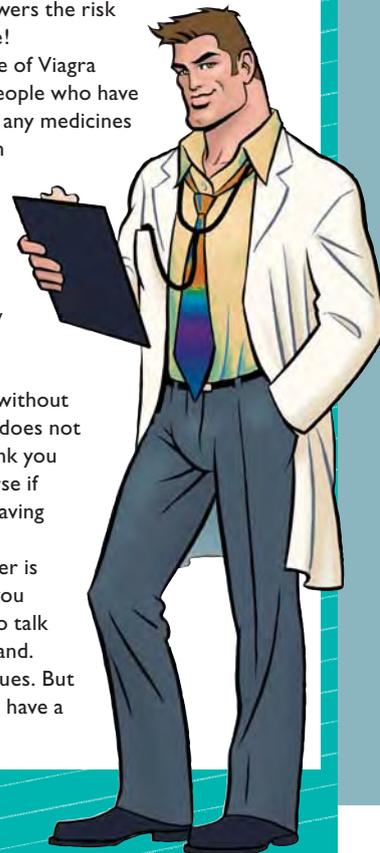

Thanks for writing in. I can imagine that you are worried and can understand that he feels uncomfortable talking about it. Many people do worry whether it's safe to have sex after heart problems or worry that it may cause another heart attack. So I hope I can reassure you.

Sex is not very stressful on the heart. In fact the physical demand of sex (that's just standard penetrative sex, not marathon style sex!) is about the same as just climbing two flights of stairs. As your partner is older with past heart problems the effort, of course, is greater, but the greatest increase in heart rate and blood pressure occurs for only 10–15 seconds during orgasm, after which they quickly return to baseline. So, it is not a great strain on the heart.

The risk of having a heart attack during sex is very small. In fact, less than 1% of all heart attacks occur during sex. As long as your husband does not have any symptoms of heart disease such as angina (that's chest pain that feels like a dull, heavy or tight pain in the chest that can sometimes spread to the left arm, neck, jaw or back) then the risk is very unlikely. Also, remember that having sex regularly actually lowers the risk because it's a good form of exercise!

I do, however, worry about his use of Viagra type medicines. These are safe in people who have had heart attacks but not if he uses any medicines for angina or medicines that contain nitrates. If Viagra and nitrate medicines are taken together, the effects are greater than when either one is used alone. This can cause a great drop in blood pressure that can decrease the flow of blood to the heart and can then possibly cause a heart attack.

In summary if he can do exercise without experiencing angina symptoms and does not take medicines for angina then I think you can enjoy a normal sex life. Of course if he ever develops problems whilst having sex then simply stop and get some medical advice. Your sex life together is important for your relationship. If you are not feeling reassured then try to talk about your worries with your husband. Communication is vital in sexual issues. But I'm sure you can resolve this and so have a happy and long marriage.

Meet the MACHINE

Larry Tee's Super Electric Party Machine takes over East Bloc every Friday, causing somewhat of a ruckus in the basement club as the sexy, the cute, the colourful and the creative gather for a mash-up of colossal proportions! The club has also just released its self-titled debut album. Meet just a few of the characters that help get the party poppin'...

Larry Tee

I have never had more fun than here in London. I just released my new album, named after my Friday party at East Bloc, 'Super Electric Party Machine', which has tons of local stars like Portia Ferrari (Versace model and ES mag cover star), co-producer/DJ star AttackAttackAttack, rappers Lady Cartel and Nwando as well as Americans like Princess Superstar, Mike Q, rapper Cuntly Savage, and boy band MDPC. All in all, London lets me do everything I love doing and there is so much creative inspiration here. I am a lucky man, BITCHES BITCHES BITCHES!

AttackAttackAttack

When I first met Larry Tee we totally hit it off. He's been a massive inspiration to me on both a personal and career level, not to mention a constant source of hilarity. Together we started Super Electric Party Machine and our record label Carnage Music, which is home to a host of new London and international talents, as well as our Super Electric Party Machine album. Having co-produced the album, I have a fondness for so many of the tracks, but the next single 'Body Talk' featuring London's Portia Ferrari is my personal favourite, the video is with the CGI team as we speak and was shot by the amazing up-and-coming video genius, Ashley Joiner.

Portia

I grew up all over the world but always knew I wanted to live in London. When I first moved here I met Joseph Icaro and we were introduced to the East London scene together, meeting most of our friends at Larry's night SEPM! I spend most of my time networking as a make-up artist, hairstylist, model, dancer, a singer AND a student!

Larry and I started working on the track 'Body Talk' late last year! I'm also working on some hip-hop and R'n'B tracks with a UK rapper, so watch this space!

Michael Stephens

I spent my first few years in London working at legendary British style bible i-D Magazine, which consequently opened many doors to the eccentric East End club scene. I'm now based in Central London at a renowned department store where I manage the Graphic Design department and creative projects, but at the weekend I'm still found at SEPM, loving the fashion-forward crowd and eclectic mix of fun positive electronic dance vibes!

Joel Jay P

I'm a model/dancer and an editor for Noctis magazine. My love for the SEPM style of music started back from when I lived in the Midlands where grime, garage bassline and house originated. SEPM is renowned for its big bassy music, which keeps me dancing and buzzing all night long. My favourite track is Super Electric Party Machine ft Portia Ferrari, 'Body Talk'.

Will Bond

I grew up in north London, but when my family moved to Shrewsbury I'd sneak to Birmingham every weekend and it wasn't long before I was DJing at my favourite clubs. Now I'm lucky to spend most of my time in East London working as DJ and Label Manager at Carnage Music, the record label to Super Electric Party Machine. You'll find me at SEPM every Friday. I'm either on the door, dancing to Larry Tee's later sets or (if I'm lucky) behind the decks myself. After working on the release of the SEPM album, each track is special to me. I've remixed Portia Ferrari's 'Body Talk' and I love playing this out because it has a throbbing bouncy bassline, but I couldn't forget to mention 'Disco Me Disco' featuring Russian experimentalist artist Andrey Bartenev. I love his Russian accent on the vocals and the progressive build-ups will have your hands high in the air!

Nasty Pixie

With nine Top 20 hits and three No.1's under her belt, Pixie Lott is about to get 'Nasty' with the release of her next single. Ahead of her G-A-Y gig this weekend, QX asks her about some of the nastiest, weirdest or strangest experiences she's had...

G-A-Y

Pixie Lott is at Heaven
(Villiers Street, Charing Cross, WC2N 6NG)
on Saturday 8th March, 10.30pm-5am.

...chat-up line?

I've had people ask for my hand in marriage. I always say yes!

...present you've received?

There was this one really weird letter I had where this guy sent me a fuzzy little chick with a hat that he'd made himself. He said he was going to send me a hat every month. But then he never sent me another one again! I wonder what happened to him?

...song to hear on the dancefloor?

I would say the Proclaimers song '500 Miles' by Peter Kay really annoys me.

...time you've ever been drunk?

Well, they've never been bad experiences, really, they've always been good ones! But the first time I've ever been sick from alcohol was when I was younger and me and my friends went to a Chinese restaurant, that was very 'lenient' with serving alcohol - that's why we went there because we could get served. We were mixing alcohol and drank everything. I remember my dad coming to pick us up and I was sick all over the car park. I felt horrendous the next day.

...thing you've ever read about you in the media?

One time there was an article in the paper that I was a real diva with my rider and I only wanted red M&Ms, and I always demanded to have a globe in my dressing room and psychology books. I don't know where they got that from.

...date?

Going to McDonalds and sitting in the car park eating a McFlurry.

...job before she got famous?

I've been performing for years and got signed when I was 15, so I've never had a regular job. But in the beginning I've done two or three shows as Mika's lollipop girl where I'd dress up in pink dresses and blonde wig and jump up and down on stage for £50.

...gig?

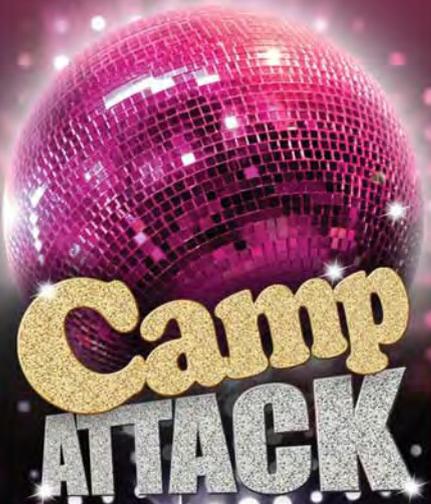

There was one time when I was first starting out and it was really late at night, and I got on stage, the sound system was really bad and the music kept going back to the start. We had to keep starting over, and then it just cut out. So I was stuck on stage with no music and had to fill the time just telling some jokes and it was really awkward. It happens!

...outfit?

When I was younger I did a lot of random shows and musical theatre and I was pretty much put in every outfit. Once I had to dress up as a chicken! Don't ask!

ERROR IN THE MARGINS?

Both people of ethnicity and LGBT citizens are ostensibly within the 'margins' of mainstream society. But does this mean a solidarity between the two groups, or a passing on of oppression through the oppressed? Patrick Cash looks into the subject.

RuPaul was asked in an interview recently if he thought, as a black man, that homophobia was more prevalent within the black community. In his answer, he said: "People who have been oppressed take on the characteristics of their oppressor, and that is unfortunate... You would think that natural allies would be black folks, gay folks, because the plight is really the same. But that's not the case because of that oppression storyline."

When Frank Ocean revealed on a Tumblr note in 2011 that he had once been in love with a man, it was heralded by the global media as a brave, pioneering action. Here was a representative not only of the musical genre R'n'B/rap, atypically associated with a proud, straight masculinity, but also of the black community declaring his deeply felt emotional 'transgression' of sexuality.

But it was only so brave and pioneering because the black community is traditionally perceived to be less accepting of homosexuality than most aspects of Western society in general. Perhaps these perceptions are wrong. But the flippant use of homosexual-based slurs in raps, and statistical facts such as that 70% of Californian black families supported the same-sex marriage ban, appear to back up the idea in America.

Ben Macklemore

However, when I spoke to London-based artist Jacob V Joyce recently about how the black community in the UK treats race, he said: "Black culture is a huge, huge thing. The black community in London from what I can see doesn't have that much more homophobia than the white community... In my own experience I've experienced lots of homophobia from white people and black people, but I think you might just hear it a bit louder from a community that doesn't have much of a voice in other places."

What really ignited the race-sexuality debate in recent weeks was the Macklemore 'Same Love' furore, sweeping up at the Grammys. Straight, white rapper Ben Haggerty's ode to marriage equality for LGBT citizens has come under fire for lines such as "if I was gay, I would think hip-hop hates me". These soundbites are said to perpetuate myths of homophobia in black music genres and, by extension, the wider black community, with many of the most outspoken critics stemming from voices of the black LGBT community.

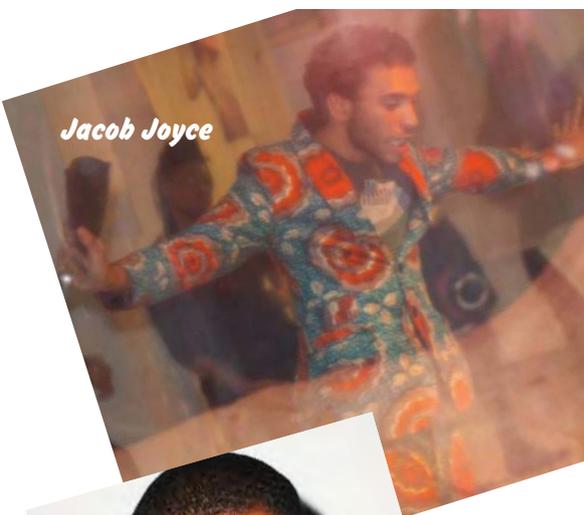

Joyce thinks it's a deeper, and more systemic, problem behind the mistrust directed towards Macklemore.

"It's annoying in 2014 to see there are so many amazing black rappers like LEIF, Cakes Da Killa, Mykki Blanco, Angel Haze, talking about their struggle of being black and gay/queer and it not really getting that much media attention. But then a middle class white person comes along and says, "Hey, it's okay to be gay" and he wins all the awards. It reminds me too much of Elvis when there were all these oppressed black people literally singing songs about oppression and then he took those songs and sung them in a cheerful way and he's King of Pop."

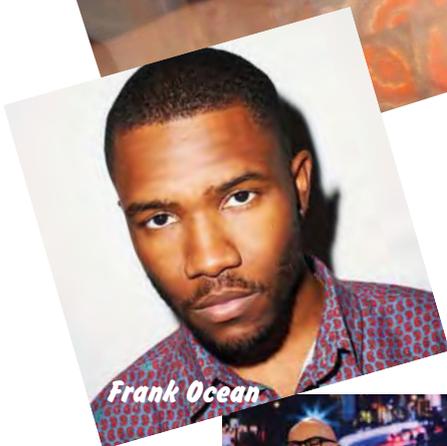

One of the most powerful and important speeches about oppression in our era went viral across the internet recently, courtesy of Irish drag queen Panti Bliss. She spoke of checking herself for her sexuality, 'what gives the gay away', at road crossings. "That feels oppressive," she says. Imply this neuroses of insecurity into a marginalised community and it takes a lot of innate strength to not try for an easy ego boost by superficially strengthening the ego against others, as RuPaul himself goes on to say in his interview.

Whether you are oppressed by way of your race or your sexuality, or even both, it will take a collective strengthening of resolve to shrug off the secondhand characteristics of oppression.

NOT THE APPS, BUT THE APPETITE

By Patrick Cash

Recently there seems to be an increasing trend to blame apps like Grindr for various problems that afflict the gay scene. But are we just trying to blind ourselves to where these problems truly originate?

Some time ago I was asked to read through a submitted article to QX and give a second opinion as to its publication. It was by a man in his thirties outlining how drugs, chill-outs and sex parties slowly took over his life until he lost his job and contracted HIV. The article found its eventual culmination in a line stating: "Now I'd realised the reason for everything that was going wrong in my life: Manhunt."

It seemed that the writer had managed to identify demons in his own person, but then immediately sought another outlet on which to lay the blame. Let's be clear, here: in my opinion Manhunt had very little to do with the reason why this man's life went off the rails. Manhunt was a facilitator, a go-between, a means to an end, but it could not singularly be held accountable as a reason why.

Recently I've noticed a similar trend to at least partially lay the blame upon apps like Grindr for the current chemsex problems afflicting some sections of the gay London community. Jon Snow asked the DJ Fat Tony on Channel 4 news whether crystal meth could be accessed through an app, and Tony replies with his anecdote that he was offered chems 147 times over 3 days on Grindr. Whether intentionally or not, this contextually gives an impression that Grindr may be a source of the problem.

But of course, Grindr and its brother apps are simply bridges. The quick communication they offer may make building a chemsex party or getting access to drugs easier, but the apps are only the sums of their users. It is the same pattern of thinking as attributing drug culture solely to clubs in Vauxhall. From those who stand external to that scene you may understand how the misguided impression has arisen, but when it stems from the beating hearts caught up in the centre of the centrifuge, it seems deliberate tunnel vision.

There is a dragon out there purring in some areas of the gay scene. Many of us dance with it at the weekends: it smarts in the sting of mephedrone, in the shot of G, coils in crystal meth and shoots from slamming needles. But if you dance with the dragon for too long, you are going to get burnt. And the dragon is not Vauxhall, the dragon is not the clubs, it's not the apps, it's not even just the drugs. It's an appetite that lives and feeds inside.

Where does the appetite come from? We as gay men are renowned for being obsessed with our outside appearance, from the clothes we wear or our perfect hair to the phenomenal success of airbrushed photos. Perhaps we lay such importance on the outside veneer that we present to the world, because we're still not completely happy with what's inside.

Sexual Health expert and drugs counsellor David Stuart of 56 Dean Street has some very interesting theories on this subject to do with us as gay men's relationship with sex, shame and intimacy. These issues can be resolved successfully, but it'll involve an intricate communication of truth and addressing what's going on inside. The apps are simply sometimes dark mirrors reflecting at a slant what's going on within areas of the gay community.

Of course, the message of safe sex, of being able to tackle problematic drug use through clinics like CODE, can never be said enough and perhaps this could be incorporated at a wider level into facilitators. But, as a young writer we have here at QX named Anthony Gilét recently said, the time to actually listen to these messages will only come when you yourself feel ready to stop.

Changing attitudes in Poland

Poland doesn't have the best history at dealing with homosexuality. Well, it is a deeply Catholic country. So, filmmaker

Malgorzata Szumowska decided to take on both sexuality and religion in her movie In The Name Of, which became a surprise box office hit back home. QX's Jack Leger met up with her in London...

I can't recall seeing a Polish film address gay issues, and now we have two in one year: In The Name Of and Floating Skyscrapers...

Few filmmakers are willing to deal with these issues. Tomasz Wasilewski, who made Floating Skyscrapers, and I are friends, so I found it interesting that he was brave enough to make that film. I used to be a Catholic, and it stayed in my mind when I quit the church. I'd met so many priests that I had to say something. I knew that this would be the first film in my country about a homosexual priest, so I wanted to make a movie that never judged him. People in Poland are still homophobic and judgmental, especially outside the big cities.

Is this why you set the story in a small village?

Yes. If I put it in a big city it would be a completely different thing. Poland is not a multi-cultural country; it's a closed society, so it's changing far too slowly. In the big city we are more open, and there is no divide between gay and straight people. But people in the provinces are afraid to even talk about these issues. And the church treats homosexuality as a sickness, so the priest is caught in the middle. It's like a classic tragedy in that sense.

Are things changing?

Yes, but far too slowly. People clearly have a desire for this kind of movie, and some think my film isn't radical enough! But it's important to have more of these subjects addressed in movies. Although after making films on the history of prostitution and a homosexual priest, I think my next movie will be a little less intense.

In The Name Of is available on Peccadillo DVD/VOD.

"The church treats homosexuality as a sickness."

- Various Artists
You could play a cool disco house 2 hour long DJ set using only this compilation.

6. 'Zsa Zsa'

- Blamma Blamma
The Psychemagik remix of this is just a slow dancefloor stomper.

7. 'The Feeling'

- Julian Sanza feat. Future Feelings
Cool nu-disco spacey track.

8. 'Strobin'

- Fingerman
Dancefloor mover by Mr Gregg Holmes.

9. 'Running to Your Love'

- Ilya Santana
The Sportloto remix is such an amazing work.

10. 'Keep on Running'

- D Pulse
Again, this Russian guy delivers a super cool disco tune.

Tell us in one tasty sentence who DJ Rayko is...

Rayko is a crazy Spanish guy who loves to play and produce disco vibes.

What have been your best club career moments so far?

To name a few, I always remember nights like the one I spent playing in Cairo in a boat in the Nile river, or a warehouse in LA, or in Womb club in Tokyo...

You're playing at Dalston Superstore's new night, "Battered Sausage". Tell us about your chorizo and what makes Spanish disco so sexy... what do you bring to the sound?

Well, I guess it's all about sunshine... I always loved to listen to positive and joyful music, so I try to import that feelings to my DJ sets.

DJ Rayko will be playing at 'Battered Sausage' at the Dalston Superstore, 117 Kingsland Road, E8 2PB, on Saturday 8th March, 9pm-3am. Free before 10pm, £5 after.

IT'S BACK! WIN £1,000 G-A-Y PORN IDOL

Part 1: Thursday 13th March

Judges Tanya Hyde, Michael Mitchell and Baga Chipz will sit with their backs to the audience so they can't see the contestants, but go by audience reaction to decide whether to turn. Judges then mentor the contestant they turn for, or the contestant chooses their judge if more than one turns. The judges will then have 2 days to choreograph a two-minute strip, choosing their music, outfit and everything that is needed to help the contestant win £1,000.

Part 2: Saturday 15th March

£1,000 to be won! Which judge's contestant will win it?

To be a Contestant text 07789 553 868 or email info@g-a-y.co.uk - ABSOLUTELY ANYONE CAN ENTER!

WOW! THAT WAS literally the first word that fell out of our mouths as we left behind the cold of Soho Square and entered a much hotter atmosphere in The Edge; and we ain't just talking central heating. The clientele that had turned out to help owner

Andy and Chad and the crew of cute bar staff were tastier than birthday cake icing. And if the pretty patrons and barmen weren't enough to have us salivating (they totally were), there were even topless totty strolling around and posing for photos; what a stressful life that must be... Chad then took place on the podium, sandwiched between a handful of hunks - aww, poor you - and was presented with a cake bursting with fireworks. To be fair it's not exactly the spark we were hoping for that night. But that didn't stop us from enjoying the commercial pop they had pumping until the early hours of Sunday. Cheers to many more birthdays (and many more nights husband-cruising at The Edge).

AFTER A HARD DAY of lopping big trees into little logs, a lumberjack needs to kick back, pop open a brewski and get down... to XXL to the real business of turning twigs into big branches!

Mark Ames and crew had the whole gosh dang lumber camp dancin round the maypole as resident DJs Christian M, Joe Egg, Alex and Stu Stiles shaved the bark off the old oak and shook our acorns loose. We heaved and hoed amongst the bristly beards and checked shirts exposing more than a few leather harnesses clearly worn for health and safety purposes when scaling those sequoias. Ambient tunes soothed a week-weary crowd leading to harder bass as the night got darker and the men got burlier. Bears, beers, brawn and bass brewing a whole lotta hot trouble.

Bears crawled outta hibernation and followed a trail of packed lunches from Blackfriars across the dance floor to the chill out room manned by the humpiest of barmen, Andrew, a genuine heartbreaker serving suds with a wicked wink and a dirty grin.

Lubber lads, plaid players and chubby choppers all put down their axes and picked up – each other.

Big bears also proved they have big hearts as Mark Ames put out the call for volunteers to assist a benefit for Kaleidoscope, a charity dedicated to helping gays afflicted by human rights abuses in Africa. "It's just me and anyone else trying to make a difference and support those affected by this ignorance and persecution. I hope other venues join in, too."

He's ringing that triangle fellas. So climb down off your trees and get busy!

CARNIVAL IN HEAVEN! Can you think of a more perfect trip? Popcorn at Heaven lived up to its name as Selby, Ben and over 20 go-go boys, day-glo dancers, samba queens, batteria drummers and capoeira fighters threw the party of the year so far with the event they were born to lead—Carnival, the beautiful bacchanalian Brazilian gift – and smacked us right on the lips with a dazzling display of Latin funk, twerkin’ RnB and an absolute somersault of sound and colour that swept the ‘pipoca’ off their feet with 4 explosive shows that shook the conga line shimmying out the club up Charing Cross

Road all the way to Rio, baby!
Resident DJ Paulo Moreno, guest DJs Ale Amaral and Ariel captained the main stage beneath a streaming psychedelic vortex as DMS, Little Rob and Zach Burns took no prisoners in their niche camps and marched us off in an army of lovers; strangers only until the first kiss on this sexiest day of the year.

“I want to bring a little bit of Carnival in Rio with me here tonight,” Brazilian import DJ Amaral smiled humbly, his gorgeous cheeky grin knowing he has done way more than that tonight.

Highlights included a UV mash-up with Selby and the Heaven dancers including newcomer, Chris Groom, his first day on the job as a Popcorn popper.

“The absolute time of my life!” he gushed, the understatement of the week as balloons and confetti cascaded all around us. Welcome to Heaven!

TIN TIN

Club Tin Tin prides itself on delivering a funk-ed-up crowd gyrating to some seriously sexy beats. This Friday, the club returns taking over the 5th floor of Rise on Leicester Square, featuring stunning views across London, a kickin' sound system and a new weekly slot. Here's what some of the hosts had to say about it... and themselves...

1: Kingsley

Tell us about you...

Kingsley, 29, Cancerian, who likes a long walk along the beach and Care Bears. Full time hair stylist and part time DJ/host. I've been working on the scene now for 10 years. What turns me on? Music. I love me some good disco, soul and Janet Jackson!

What will your look be on the night?

I seem to be dressing more and more like Lisa Stansfield on her first album cover, so I'm guessing something loosely tailored and acid washed with a few crucifixes!

Tell us something scandalous about one of your co-hosts...

Paul can drop and stitch a weave like a motherfucker. He can also twerk upside down!

What's the best chat-up line someone's ever given you?

I can tell you the worst was some leech of a creep coming up to me and going, "Hey, nice height". Seriously he was like a total Igor with weak fashion sense and thirsty lines!

2: Paul Marcus

Who are you, what do you do and what turns you on?

I'm a club promoter and host. And hairy hunks with tats!

Why are Friday nights a good idea?

Good way to kickstart the weekend.

What are you looking forward to at the new venue?

To smash the dance floor of course! LOL

3: Smiley Vyrus

Tell us about yourself...

Smiley Vyrus is that girl who forgot her dress and wears a cheap, fabulous, ratty wig.

Describe a night at Club Tin Tin.

Well, obviously it's the most fabulous night in all the land!

Have you picked out an outfit?

No outfit yet but, slutty heroin chic... Really slutty.

4: Ollywood

Tell us about you...

I'm a 14 year old emo girl trapped in the tattooed body of a 25 year old man.

Have you picked out an outfit for the night?

Well unfortunately, my Dior Couture is at the dry cleaners, so I guess i'll have to wear my usual vest and cap. :)

Tell us something scandalous about one of your co-hosts at the club...

Jonny Yihi - too gay to function. Smiley Virus - made out with a hot dog. Kingsley - fugly slut.

5: Johnny Yihi

Tell us who you are, what you do, what turns you on...

Kind, funny, friendly. Love dancing, hip-hop, DJing, fashion, parties and all of them to share with GOOD friends.

Tin Tin has been going from strength-to-strength. What have been some of your favourite moments at the club?

For me, I have met really good people there, who you can trust, and all of them in the London nightlife where, in my opinion, it's really hard to find it.

Why is the move to a Friday night a good idea?

Weekends always involve more people, and this time it's moving to Soho area, one of the most popular places in London, so I'm sure it's gonna be amazing. I can't wait to be in there, seriously.

Club Tin Tin is weekly at Rise (1 Leicester Square, WC2H 7NA) from Friday 7th March, 10pm-3am.

"After one bite, you're hooked. My advice, it's best served hot!"

It's getting EPIC

Epic is the new event that is hitting town this weekend to bring a slice of New York clubbing to London. QX speaks to promoter Michael Theriault and host Johanna Londinium to find out more. And introducing DJ Serving Ovahnness...

Michael Theriault is a new name on the London scene. What's his clubland experience back in NYC?

JOHANNA: Michael's NYC club experience comes from living and breathing the 'Party Monster' movie for real. An original NYC club kid, when Michael decided to start throwing his own parties he wanted to re-create that colourful, hedonistic, no holds barred environment where people from all walks of life and sexual persuasions could show up and express themselves however they wanted, then lose themselves on the dance floor to the beats of old school NYC house music. He's most known for his Sunday evening tea dance 'The Underground'.

Epic is all about bringing a taste of New York's gay club scene to London. What does the New York club scene taste like?

MICHAEL: It's like a really good dessert. Nice and rich with different layers of taste that make every bite of this sexy rollercoaster of an adventure. After one bite, you're hooked. My advice, it's best served hot!

Who is involved in this event?

JOHANNA: Flying in from NYC we have DJs Serving Ovahnness and Razor & Guido. Club hostess Erica Gabriel will be there to shake things up. From London DJ Dmitry Strigun is providing the tunes. I will be hosting along with La Pequena, Taylor Scott, Le Menor and HRH Minty. Shaun Capewell will be looking after his super sexy team of performers and gogos.

The event is at Pulse, which is a big space and famous for XXL. How will you transform it for Epic?

MICHAEL: You are not lying! When I saw the space for the first time I was like, "Oh shit!!" But I'm not one to just throw a DJ behind a set of turntables and call it a party. You'll have to come a see what we do at Epic. It will be good fun.

Serving Ovahnness

Give us the overview of the Ovahnness...

I am a DJ and Producer born and raised in New York City. I consider myself a messenger of house music and I love being able to share my sound and message through music. London has been one of the cities I have dreamed of playing for years and I can't even begin to share how excited I am to finally be coming to you.

Describe your sound to us London boys?

My sounds is percussive house blended with vocals. Whether progressive, deep, or classic, I love to give a repertoire of music that is past, present, and future. That may include old school house, disco, funk, R&B and remakes of classics all packaged in my "signature" way.

Ok, so the name. It's like soooo NYC. How did it come about?

My name was actually given to me by one of my closest friends. He would always say, when you play music you always "serve us ovahnness". I started out using DJ Brian D, that name didn't go too well with my friends and everyone started telling me "No your name is DJ Serving Ovahnness". The rest is history. The name has less to do with me but more to do with the music. I'm just Brian and I'm here to serve my crowd with a great time.

What have been your best gigs to date?

Getting to headline in Tel-Aviv for FFF was one of my biggest gigs to date. The crowd was unbelievable, and it felt amazing to be able to go to the other side of the world and have a crowd that knew the music, the vocals, and gave so much life to the dancefloor. The other was for Black Party weekend in NYC when I did a party at the Underground with Junior Vasquez. I opened that night for him, and when Junior arrived after listening to my set, he invited me to spin alongside him for the rest of the evening. That night I spun with my idol.

How do you think London will take to a NYC sound?

I think London will take on the NYC sound very well, because the music scene in London has always had a major presence in the underground house music scene. I think London will recognize a lot of the influences that have come into NYC house and vice versa.

Epic is at Pulse (No 1 Invicta Plaza, Southbank, SE1 9UF) on Friday 7th March, 11pm-late.

How to win MR EAGLE

...and walk away with £1,000!

Are you more butch than bitch? Get ready to ditch the skimpy Abercrombie & Fitch shaved look, bust out the beard and maybe even sling a harness on as it is almost time for Mr Eagle 2014. If you think you've got what it takes to ruffle a few feathers and impress a crowd of eager men and scene judges, then you could win a whopping £1,000 and be the lust of all men for the coming year. Roy Inc presents his top seven tips for winning the coveted title and a generous stash of cash... AND contestants get a chance to represent Eagle London at International Mister Leather (May) or International Mister Rubber (November) in Chicago! Not bad at all.

Roy photographed by Lee 4th Child

1 Choose your outfit well, think what makes you feel confident

Cub, rubber pig, sugar daddy, leather top, sport boy, business city lad in a tight suit? Bulging crotch, porn star in the making or just landed in London and whoring for your green card?

2 Always have good eye contact with the host on stage

Even though you might not have any idea what the fuck he's talking about just nod and smile.

3 Pick the perfect prop

The Eagle audience are a great crowd, so be a people pleaser and have a little trick up your sleeve; like wearing a jock strap if you're willing to show!

4 No comprende?

If English isn't your first language bring along a hot interpreter, who will do all your "oral" translation for you.

5 Show off your best ass-ets

A way to convince the judges you should be crowned Mr Eagle is to drop something, turn around and pick it up, bum up in the air. A tight ass always brings in the points.

6 Bring your own clap-o-meter

Another way for points stealing is to bring your own crowd of mates ready to cheer you on towards getting that cash cow...

7 Variety is the spice of life

All are welcome to step on stage at The Eagle, including all ages! (Well, you must be over 18, of course. It's Mr Eagle, not a Butlins Holiday Camp talent search contest!) But remember... bring your 'A' Game!

HOW TO ENTER

Send an email to mreagle@eaglelondon.com with your name, telephone number, a recent photo and a short sentence or two as to why YOU should be Mr Eagle 2014!

BAR OF THE WEEK

THE QUEBEC

12 Old Quebec Street, W1H 7AF

City of Quebec is one of the most lauded gay pubs in central London, bringing a diverse range of men in through its doors near to the famous Marble Arch. With exceptionally friendly service and a streamlined running to the whole shindig, you could do worse than a swift one in the Quebec! And with stunning cabaret artistes laying on the entertainment at the weekends you'd be advised to make the night of it there if you haven't already. This Sunday 9th March is the turn of Miss Jason to get your mouths a-laughing and your feet a-gidding.

MANBAR

79 Charing Cross Road, Soho, WC2H 0NE

Manbar boasts one of the most eclectic range of offerings for nights out over the scene with its clubbier, sexy late nights that go on until 3am not detracting from the quality of its earlier bar events too. On a Sunday you'll find their highly enjoyable London gay film club Genre which screens different films each week, and this Sunday 9th March being the turn of the much acclaimed 'Behind the Candelabra', starring Michael Douglas and Matt Damon. Monday 10th is the free gay sexual health clinic service where the lovely people from 56 Dean Street will be on the first floor offering you confidential advice and testing. And Tuesday 11th is of course their phenomenally successful Spotlight talent contest where the search continues, courtesy of main man Duncan Day, for the best talent that Soho and London have to offer!

Duncan Day

Miss Jason

KU SOHO

25 Frith Street, Soho, WC2H 7BA

Ku Bar in Soho has had an awesome makeover! And it's gone gold, golder than you can possibly imagine, so you'd better get yourself there to see it for yourself in the flesh, sparkling like Ali Baba's cave meets Tutenkhamen's palace with, of course, a lavish dash of all-round contemporary Ku sexiness. It's all down to master interior designer to the stars Leopold Lawrence (the mastermind behind the gorgeous mothership Ku at Lisle Street, off Leicester Square), who has opened up the first floor with chandeliers and golden furniture to make it the perfect space to relax and watch Old Compton Street go by. Plus, of course there is the usual bevy of gorgeous Ku boys behind the bar, so you won't know whether to keep your eyes on them or the décor!

HALFWAY 2 HEAVEN

7 Duncannon Street, Charing Cross, WC2N 4JF

Halfway is one of the most popular destinations in all of gay London for some top-notch cabaret entertainment at the weekends and with a schedule like this one we're not at all surprised! Friday 7th March sees 'Friday Night Live!', hosted by one of the finest acerbic wits of the scene Miss Myra Dubois, and featuring special guest Martha D'Arthur. Saturday 8th sees Myra back again from 4pm, filling in for Rose Garden whilst she's in Australia, and Saturday night is the sexy 'Bears Downstairs' hosted by Justin Swift. And why not finish off the weekend on Sunday 9th with Mrs Moore from 8pm?!

RUPERT STREET

50 Rupert Street, Soho, W1D 6DR

Rupert Street is that sexy spot of Soho that gives you a bit of dancefloor bang for your party buck, with DJs all over the big weekend days and one on Thursday too! This Thursday 6th March, warm up for the weekend with the sounds of Rich B from 9pm, then hot stuff Brent Nicholls takes over on Friday 7th from 9pm again and on Saturday reach the apex of your weekend with the spinning fingers of Sharon O Love taking you higher (from 9pm)! Plus happy hour is every day from 12-8pm with bottles of house champagne at £19 and 2-4-£10 cocktails.

of their Bedsits and clampered down to Kazbar for a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see Best Song BAFTA gong winner Katherine Ellis share the stage with Bedsit Boys DJs Robb White and Eduardo Herrera.

Singer/writer/mama/diva

Katherine's soul-searing vocals,

uptempo RnB funk and catchy phrasing made for a perfect marriage with White and Herrera's nu-disco deep house grooves.

She laid out all her hits to the lucky ones who got in and the swarming masses outside. Highlights of the show included an impromptu accapella duet between Ms. Katherine and Kazbar's Mr. Maritza with Katherine calling out to him up in the mezzanine and he, arms out-stretched over the railing, responding note for note a la West Side Story's Tony and Maria.

The audience lapped it up like cats n cream and shouted the house down for more until Ms. Ellis closed the show with everyone's favourite Freemasons remix of 'Tears'. "She's just fabuluus!" preened Brazilian duo ElectroMagnetico's Christian Peterson and Alessandre Dias who had just arrived to see the show and were queuing in the cluster of fans trying to get backstage.

Exhausted but delighted, Katherine had no plans for slowing down just yet. "I spent 2013 touring, so now I'm spending 2014 recording." She's written 5 of the 6 tracks she's recorded on the forthcoming Bimbo Jones album 'Go Naked' due for digital download in March. Then touring behind that. We can't wait!

...AND THE OSCAR GOES TO...

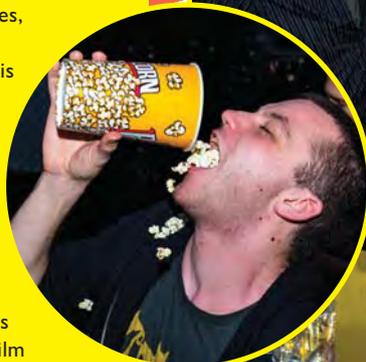

Manbar! GENRE, Manbar's feature film and shorts night rocketed to stardom with the launch of its new Sunday night cinema, GENRE and the Gay London Film Club, on Oscar night, of course! Hosted by incomparable pair Chrissy Darling and Tom Whelehan, Hollywood went Hollyweird as they presented a jam-packed pre-show of off-the-wall trivia contests, songs, prizes, surprises and the feature film, the Oscar-winning Gravity. Manbar's main man, Chris Amos has branched out to create an exciting new night that will turn any movie into a fun-filled event.

Shown on a main floor silver screen and big screen TVs upstairs in your own cosy leather sofas, feature films are just a part of a more important offering: Gay London Film Club. "GLFC will showcase short films by gay independent filmmakers and provide a forum for filmmakers and film lovers to meet and network," Amos said proudly peering out at the packed house of film goers of all genders and "genres".

Chrissy and Tom kept the laughs going and the prizes flowing as audience members were treated to a barrage of jokes, bits and soundtrack songs by powerhouse vocalist, Justine Mead before, during and after the show. If that weren't enough, Amos, Mr. Manbar himself, generously handed out free year-long GENRE memberships to lucky winners, Toby Cisneros and Chris Musangi.

"Next week is Behind The Candelabra. It's going to be a great time!—and FREE Popcorn too!" See you at the movies!

IT HAD BEEN A

long week, and after a heavy Friday, there were few things that could get us out again on the Saturday; but a relaxing hair of the dog at Ku Bar was one of them. We ventured to the newly renovated venue on Frith Street for a quiet drink. With an opulent and luxurious new interior - just in time for awards season - it was clear to see that Ku had the decorators hard at work while they were closed. Giant chandeliers dangled like the earrings of Brixton bitches and the gold decor set the perfect mood for some cocktails and cocktalk.

Downstairs, something was different. We later found out that the seats were lined with happy lesbian couples because it has been turned into new venue, She. And it wasn't long before our "quiet drink" turned into Tequila shots and beer goggles.

Standard. We look forward to reclining here on cold nights to come.

Honey, what a boo-boo...

FROM RED-FACED wardrobe malfunctions to awkward faux pas, it's not always plain sailing for the queens of our stage out there in cabaret-land. But it's all just in a night's work. Ordinarily you just hear about how fabulous a show was, with a gush here and a gush there, but this week Jason Reid finds out from six cabaret stars what's the most embarrassing situation they've ever found themselves in while performing...

Mitzi Macintosh

During a pratfall in a show I put my hand down before my bum hit the floor, only to realise five minutes later that my wrist was more than a little sprained. I thought it would save time and might get me rushed through by a "friendly" nurse if I stayed in drag. I sat in the A&E of one of Sydney's busiest hospitals at 2am with aggressive drunks all around me, a gang shooting to my right, a disgusted mother with a sick three year old opposite, and me looking like a gay clown with no male nurses to help. The embarrassment was drawn out until 9am when the first theatre became available and they could reset my wrist and insert two metal pins.

Tiffany Wells

Back in the day I was performing at a pub in the East End of London, and in the middle of singing

'New York, New York' I went to kick my leg up (in a very dainty way, of course); unfortunately the back of my stiletto got stuck in the back of my blue sequin dress. It took me five looooooong minutes to prize it free, so I had to stand there on one foot singing for the duration. As they say: "The show must go on."

Lady La Rue

In the early days of my cabaret career I was still pretty 'green' and during one show I had a girl from the audience, probably early thirties, up on stage who I'd been bantering with throughout. The rest of the audience and her friends were lapping it up. Anyway, I glanced down to the top of her dress and noticed a piece of loo paper hanging out of the top of her bra.

"Look at this girls!" I exclaimed, "She's been padding her tits out, just like me!"

It was at this point that the dear girl whispered discretely in my ear to tell me she'd recently had a double mastectomy. To say I was mortified was putting it mildly. Fortunately, she was most gracious about the whole thing and realised my innocent mistake, laughing it off. I learned more that night than I have in any other.

Meth

During a particularly energetic rendition of my 'Bat Out of Hell' spot, on All Hallows' Eve no less, my usual flailing around became somewhat more frantic after I took a slip in a puddle - caused by a leaky smoke machine (rumour has it someone had urinated in the machine leading to a series of unfortunate malfunctions). To add insult to injury, Miss Cairo and Bourgeoisie were in the audience, and, of course, began to howl with laughter. Once I'd recovered and finished the number I remedied the situation by admitting my failings and reminding everyone watching that should news get out I would utterly destroy them by tearing their souls out through their mouths and making a soup from the tears of their grieving loved ones. The same goes for anyone reading this.

La Voix

Not that long ago, I was booked to do a surprise show singing at a gay wedding at the Royal Academy of Arts. I pulled up in full drag, on a rickshaw that was blaring techno music, leaped out, burst into the wedding and shouted "Hello darlings" only to be met with looks of complete horror and silence. The rickshaw driver had mistakenly dropped me at the Royal SOCIETY of Arts - a completely different venue - which happened to have a straight wedding reception in full swing. I made a swift and cringey exit, screaming "Stooooooop" down the street to the rickshaw driver. The poor bride will surely never forget her big day now.

Jeff Kristian

As part of my big finale, in a show back in the early 80s, I had to come down a small staircase through the live band to a narrow stage. However, on one occasion an over-zealous roadie was a little too heavy on the smoke machine. I completely missed the top step, in a tight costume, and plummeted, knocking the mic stand into the audience. Costume and lip split. Everyone laughed, no bastard helped!

LET'S GET THE minor criticisms out of the way from this genuinely good production first: the script is sometimes a little hackneyed, the dialogue slightly clichéd and I did find myself asking why set a play leading up to the 1969 Stonewall riots in a bar around the corner from the Stonewall Bar, and not in the Stonewall Bar itself? But these niggling details aside, what you do have before you here is a thoroughly involving story and, I might go so far as to say, some of the most fantastic acting to be witnessed the Vauxhall side of the West End. Michael Edwards as 'Ruby', the dishonourably discharged Vietnam soldier who becomes an alcoholic drag queen in the lower East Side of New York, lights up the stage with his charisma and cadence of presence. The other disparate characters who populate this dimly lit mafia-

run bar are equally brought to life by a talented, lively cast who are highly enjoyable to watch spark and pinball off one another. Perhaps in lesser hands these characters might have come across as two-dimensional. It's hardly a strike for feminism that the one female character has 'always dreamed of working in the hat department of Macy's'. However, Nigel Barber as the angry bar owner in league with the mob, James El-Sharawy as the vulnerable teenage rentboy trying to play with the big boys, Stephanie Willson as the single mother looking after the gays, Rhys Jennings as the cop who falls for her and Oliver Lynes as the Wall Street trader caught between Ruby and his high-pressured job, were all hard to fault. At times you forget that you are watching people playing out a story, which is surely what the best of theatre is about.

SCREEN TEST
BY JACK LEGER

IN THE WORKS

Hot rising-star Brit Jack O'Connell (300: Rise Of An Empire) will star in a film about the founding of MI6 • And rumour has it that hot young Irish actor Jack Reynor (soon in Transformers 4) has landed a key role in Star Wars Episode VII.

FILM OF THE WEEK

THE GRAND BUDAPEST HOTEL (15)
Wes Anderson movies are always fun (see Moonrise Kingdom), but this raucous European adventure is in another league: a hilarious romp that manages to get under the skin as well. Ralph Fiennes gives his best-ever performance as a fiercely efficient concierge (who knew he was so good at comedy?), and costars include Tilda Swinton, Jude Law, Saoirse Ronan and villainous duo Adrien Brody and Willem Dafoe. Don't miss it.

DVD OF THE WEEK

COMING OUT (15)
Set in Montreal, this series of 12 short episodes follows four gay men through various highs and lows. It's soapy and a bit serious, as it deals with big issues like Aids, drugs, homophobia and closeted married men. But the men are sexy, and star Mathieu Blanchard (who also created the show) is very watchable. If they make a second series, some Looking-style earthy humour wouldn't go amiss. (TLA)

GLADIATOR PORN

300: RISE OF AN EMPIRE wasn't screened in time to review, but do we care whether it's any good? Trailers are a riot of near-naked men in tiny skirts battling in the sea. Rise indeed! Think of it as a prequel to Stranger By The Lake.

THRILLS & LAUGHS

Liam Hemsworth's main job in corny techno-thriller PARANOIA is to take his shirt off every 10 minutes. We're not complaining. Gary Oldman and Harrison Ford provide gravitas. • Meanwhile, action-comedy RIDE ALONG is merely a vehicle for Kevin Hart's fast-talking banter. Only occasionally funny.

GAY LONDON

CALLING CLUB & BAR REVIEWERS!

- Do you have a way with words?
- Are you often out on London's great and varied gay scene?
- Can you relay the brilliance and fun of your nights out, the music and the DJs, the atmosphere and characters, in your own unique style to our readers in a 150 words?

QX wants to hear from you!

As you may have noticed, we run bar and club reviews from London's gay scene each week and we need people to write them. If you think your pen has got what it takes then send in a little bit about yourself and a sample review to editorial@qxmagazine.com with 'QX Club Reviewers' in the subject heading. And not only will you get free guest list to all your favourite clubs, you'll also be paid for each review you write for us.

PRINCESS JULIA

Ma Butcher

This weekend we get all busy down at the George & Dragon (2 Hackney Road, E2 7NS), where, as per usual, every first Thursday of the month I invite a special guest to join me for a DJ session. This month it's the turn of Ma Butcher's 'Personal Services'. Ma Butcher is a local legend with a pig nose and part of the Gay Bingo troupe. Anyway, she'll be all dressed up and ready to go on Thursday 6th March from 8pm-12am.

There's always something going on up at the Dalston Superstore (117 Kingsland High Street, E8 2PB), this weekend it's the turn of Battered Sausage... With Rayko! Flying in from Madrid, Rayko is known for his disco edits and Rare Wiri Records label. Joining the lineup are Severino, Dave Kendrick and Nic Fisher on Saturday 8th.

Up at East Bloc (217 City Road, EC1V 1JN), Dish returns on Saturday 8th for further helpings of dance madness.

Lose yourselves in the sounds of Tom Stephan, Borja Pena,

Rayko

Ollywood, Ray Noir, Cathal and Q Boy. Hang out with hosts La Pequena and Alexander Han, watch gogo dancers Tomino and Benoit and have a night to remember!

Destination club complex Egg (200 York Way, N7 9AX) up at Kings Cross Way presents Night Train on Saturday 8th. Joining a stellar DJ line up is Hannah Holland and Jim Warboy, with special guests Finnebassen from Norway and Filterheadz headlining. There's so many rooms here you'll be spoilt for choice!

The month of March reveals some exciting developments... From Friday 14th to the 2nd May, Caligula returns for an 8 week 'Limited Edition' residency at Casa Negra (54 - 56 Great Eastern Street, EC2A 3QR). Here's the twist - a pop up dining experience from 8 till 10pm, The Feast means a light bite before you go and dance it off in the Playroom, 10 till 4am.

www.caligulauk.com

Expect decadence, dance and general debauchery... at the helm Jim Warboy, and Leo Belicha guest DJs, whilst you have a real good time!

ALL THE SWINGINGS & SINGINGS OF YOUTUBE AND BEYOND

HAERTS - 'HEMIPLEGIA'

HEMIPLEGIA OPENS with an oscillating, orange-golden synth line that swings and eddies as Nini Fabi's pure cut-glass vocals croon over the top: 'Slow, slow, slow / Wade through water...' An atmospheric start to a track that instigates the exciting tingle of anticipation, and sure enough when the drums kick in, the listener is swept along with the build. 'I cannot fight the sleep is droning / Into the motion, into the night / Is it the glow that keeps you moving / Hemiplegia holds you tight.'

Hemiplegia, for all those like me who didn't previously know, is a paralysis of the arm, leg and trunk on the same side of the body, which can induce difficulty with gait and balance. As this epic, layered music cleverly coasts and cruises through the ear, one begins to understand an instance of what Fabi sings. 'Gold for gold, burns our ocean,' she purrs, before she reaches the epic crescendo where she cries: 'now you can't move up with your eyes down.' For me, this indicates how the world around them, as HAERTS see it, is in a stranglehold of money, forgetting their emotional truth in a hemiplegia of purchase homogeny.

HAERTS were formed in Brooklyn, New York, but boast members hailing from Germany and the UK as well as the US. As they say on their website 'there is something decidedly mystical about HAERTS' story and it's reflected in their sound.' This is not a mysticism that is wreathed in esoteric opaqueness though, but rather a warm, inviting mystique that coils and embraces. They released their first EP 'Hemiplegia' last year and, although there are no current plans to visit the UK, we can but hope it will happen soon!

Health watch

Do you have an emotional or health worry?
Contact Dr Alex via email: letters@qxmagazine.com

DR ALEX, GP

Hi Dr Alex,

I've got married and we're very happy, but my husband is older than me. We enjoy sex together but he did have a heart attack a few years ago before we met; I worry now that sex may not be such a good idea. He takes pills and also with me likes to take Viagra. I tell him to be careful but he says not to talk about it and that I shouldn't worry. Can you help me?
JJ, Waterloo

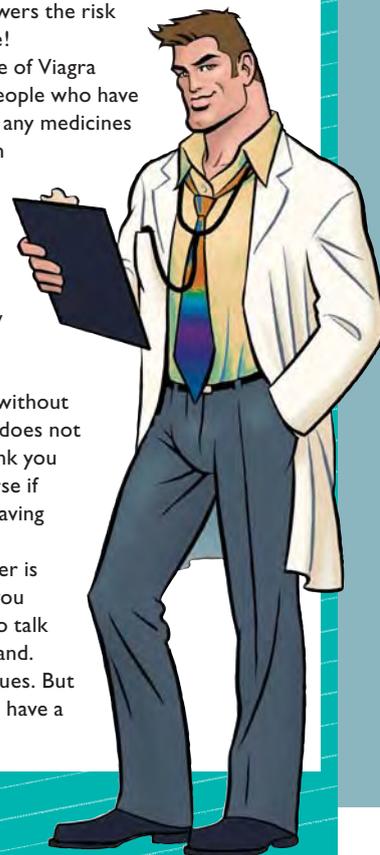

Thanks for writing in. I can imagine that you are worried and can understand that he feels uncomfortable talking about it. Many people do worry whether it's safe to have sex after heart problems or worry that it may cause another heart attack. So I hope I can reassure you.

Sex is not very stressful on the heart. In fact the physical demand of sex (that's just standard penetrative sex, not marathon style sex!) is about the same as just climbing two flights of stairs. As your partner is older with past heart problems the effort, of course, is greater, but the greatest increase in heart rate and blood pressure occurs for only 10-15 seconds during orgasm, after which they quickly return to baseline. So, it is not a great strain on the heart.

The risk of having a heart attack during sex is very small. In fact, less than 1% of all heart attacks occur during sex. As long as your husband does not have any symptoms of heart disease such as angina (that's chest pain that feels like a dull, heavy or tight pain in the chest that can sometimes spread to the left arm, neck, jaw or back) then the risk is very unlikely. Also, remember that having sex regularly actually lowers the risk because it's a good form of exercise!

I do, however, worry about his use of Viagra type medicines. These are safe in people who have had heart attacks but not if he uses any medicines for angina or medicines that contain nitrates. If Viagra and nitrate medicines are taken together, the effects are greater than when either one is used alone. This can cause a great drop in blood pressure that can decrease the flow of blood to the heart and can then possibly cause a heart attack.

In summary if he can do exercise without experiencing angina symptoms and does not take medicines for angina then I think you can enjoy a normal sex life. Of course if he ever develops problems whilst having sex then simply stop and get some medical advice. Your sex life together is important for your relationship. If you are not feeling reassured then try to talk about your worries with your husband. Communication is vital in sexual issues. But I'm sure you can resolve this and so have a happy and long marriage.
